Not for Europe
Divorce for Loneliness
Keats' Shakespeare
Chicago Will Lead

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

EUROPE EXPECTS to offer billions in German bonds to this country, proceeds for the allies.

From that danger, our home made usury may save us. Americans are paying from 7½ to 9 per cent interest on money now.

Europe would never consent to any such blood-sucker rate. They got rid of usury with the war's end. We have taken to it since then.

The Association for the Improvement of Divorce Laws suggests that divorce be granted to the lonely. That new divorce cause, intended to help women, is said to be based on moral considerations.

Loneliness is a curse, and drives victims "to seek companionship and relationship that lead to disgrace." So says the association, and would give the lonely wife or husband freedom. Loneliness, unfortunately, is not ended so easily. There is loneliness in crowds. Russia has a simple plan, giving divorce when the person asking for it says "I am discontented."

Such a law might diminish divorces. What men know they can have, they sometimes do not want.

A seven volume edition of Shakespeare is found, with many annotations on the margins by John Keats.

The volumes, showing how much Keats owed to the inspiration of Shakespeare, were discovered by Prof. Caroline Spurgeon of London University, thanks to a casual remark, overheard in Henry Fairfield Osborn's drawing room.

If Prof. Spurgeon could find the annotated volume of Chapman's Homer, that Keats read through in a night before writing his poem about the "peak in Darien," the world would be thankful.

In November, Chicago will vote to spend or not to spend $13,000,000 for a flying field, or an artificially made island in Lake Michigan, down town in the heart of Chicago.

You may rely on it, Chicago will vote YES, and build the airport.

With this magnificent air field of 1000 acres Chicago will be the only great city with an airfield within easy reach of the heart of business and of the big post office. London, Berlin and Paris are handicapped by the fact that their airports, the three greatest in the world, are all a long hour's trip from the center of the city.

That landing field will make of Chicago the great airways center, as, now, it is one of the world's greatest railway centers.

Chicago will vote "Yes," while big New York sleeps soundly, talks loudly, and watches army officers playing polo on Governor's Island, on the city's edge, where planes should be landing every minute.

Custom House officials say "fake antiques" cost this country millions a year, more than half the so-called antiques are bogus.

That is a low estimate of the bogus average.

However, even frauds may cultivate public taste gradually, and Americans are not the first to be taken in. Michelangelo made beautiful imitation Greek statues, buried them a while, and sent them to a cardinal in Rome.

Word came not to let anyone know where he had found the statues. The cardinal would dig for others.

It was a good natured cardinal, with sound artistic taste. He took good naturedly the imposition, meant to show Michelangelo's ability. And he encouraged the lad, destined to be a sculptor greater than any Greek.

Fortunate cardinal to get "fakes" made by Michelangelo and recognize their worth. What would those "fakes" be worth now?

One hundred and fifty savings banks in New York State pay every day $300,000 interest to depositors.

Savings bank interest in New England, New Jersey and New York amounts to $1,000,000 a day. It makes a great difference whether interest is running with you or against you.

Almost any man or woman, of average earnings, could be independent at 50. But the majority will continue to reach old age, with nothing saved. Some cannot save, more cannot keep what is saved.

Norman Hapgood, supporting Governor Smith, says: Woodrow Wilson agreed with Governor Smith's prohibition views.

Wilson, according to Hapgood, thought national government should only regulate liquor trade between states, letting each state arrange its own drink problem.

SMITH TO LASH OUT AT OIL SCANDAL TONIGHT

Billings, Mont., Sept. 24—En route with Governor Smith to Helena—Governor Smith invaded the Northwest territory today, delineator on the offensive.

The defense phase is behind him at the end of his first week on the road. From now until the sixth of November the Democratic nominee's campaign is to be a slashing attack on the opposition, coupled with a clear exposition of his own ideas on the issues.

Tonight in the Capitol of Montana, a State the Democrats appear very confident of carrying this year Smith will tear into the record of the Harding-Coolidge administration of the last eight years with particular reference to oil and other scandals.

PICK 8 HOPPE JURORS; HE BARS QUINCY MEN

Amid extreme precautions against escape such as the authorities have not taken since the Sacco-Vanzetti trial, Stephen Hoppe went to trial today in Superior Court at Dedham for the murder of Patrolman Alfred N. Hollis of Quincy.

The defendant promptly served notice that he would not have a resident of Quincy on the jury that will decide on his life or death, for he had his attorney challenge every such prospective juror.

He also challenged and had the court clerk reject all residents of Braintree, his former place of residence, who came up for jury duty.

Out of a special venire of 200 men 32 were examined in the first hour and four were accepted. These were Nicholas K. Edgerton, clerk, of Avon; William W. Wilder, motorman, of Weymouth; John G. Aldus, clerk, of Wellesley, and Frank J. Brand, foreman, of Westwood.

Four more were selected after 41 had been examined, these being John F. Wills, carpenter, Medfield; Thomas F. Sullivan, clerk, Norwood; Charles E. Hakes, engineer, Brookline; Royal G. Madden, shoeworker, Stoughton.

Government and defense were allowed 12 peremptory challenges. Several of those examined were rejected because of opinions formed or objection to capital punishment to an ex-

Light Frosts Are Predicted in Hub Zone for Tonight

Cooler, but continuing fair, weather is to be the 24 hours' fare for the next 24 hours, according to the forecaster, who also predicts light frosts in spots.

The minimum temperature here in the past 24 hours was 51, but figures under 50 are expected to be recorded tonight.

The center of the cool wave is in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the midwest frostbinged. In the far northwest an even cooler wave is threatening to start an eastward push.

CAMPBELL PICKS UP 94 VOTES

John R. Campbell, candidate for the nomination for clerk of the Superior Criminal court, gained 94 votes over his opponent James J. Mulvey, in 25 precincts, in the recount of contests in the recent primary which started at Faneuil Hall today.

With the exception of Ward 5 where Mulvey picked up 4 votes in 11 precincts, Campbell gained in every precinct, particularly in Precinct 4 of Ward 6, where he added 61 to his total.

John F. Gaffney for Campbell protested a block of 20 ballots cast in Ward 11 because of marks of a pencil used in counting them, but was overruled on the ground the marks were made in the recount.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Sept. 24 (INS)—With estimates of Florida's hurricane dead ranging up to 2200, Red Cross officials today were checking the casualty lists of small towns along the shore of Lake Okeechobee in the flooded Everglades section.

Chicago, Sept. 24—One of the great battles of the country in the presidential campaign is centering in Massachusetts.

It is a high probability that as the contest nears the close the old Bay State may be in the center of the stage as the most spectacular and hardfought spots in the Union.

Of course, New York and New Jersey will be under the spotlight and expect a big place under the proscenium arch every minute of the play, but for a hair-curling finish that is likely to defy a clear

NASHUA POLICEMAN NEAR DEATH AFTER KILLING GUNMAN IN DUEL

GOT HIS MAN, BUT MAY DIE

While Patrolman James H. Roche (inset) lies dying from gun wounds, suffered in a battle with Thomas Kelly, whom he shot to death at Nashua, N. H., his family, shown in photo, awaits word of his condition from the hospital. Following the exchange of shots, Kelly staggered down the street, was captured and then at the hospital attempted to strangle Patrolman Miller before he died. In the family group are Patrolman Roche's wife, with her daughters, Rosaleen and Isabel, and son, James, with Irene and Lillian.

THUG DIES FIGHTING NURSES IN HOSPITAL WARD

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 23—Thomas Kelly, 23-year-old gunman of Manchester, is dead, and Patrolman James Roche of the Nashua police force is dying, as a result of a gun battle the officer and the thug staged on the lawn of the home of Edward Blomberg at 32 Temple st.

The story of Kelly's death duel is worthy of the pen of an Oppenheim or a Fletcher. Shot through the mouth, his jaw shattered and his tongue pierced, the burglar raised himself on his elbow, drew his revolver from its shoulder harness and fired five shots into the body of Patrolman Roche.

Then dragging himself to his feet, the burglar managed to make his way to the street. With blood pouring from the wound in his face, he staggered more than half a mile, leaving a trail of blood behind, until he finally collapsed on the front porch of the home of R. E. Weymouth at 2 Amory ter.

Then, while dying in the Nashua hospital, Kelly battled with the officer who was guarding him and with the hospital nurses until he collapsed. When hospital physicians arrived on the scene, Kelly was dead. In the same hospital, a few cots away, lay Patrolman Roche with five bullet wounds in his body as a result of his duel with the gunman. His death is expected at any moment.

Patrolman Roche was on his beat on Temple st. when he saw a man, carrying a Boston bag, enter the sideyard of the home of Edward Blomberg at No. 32. The action of the man aroused the officer's suspicion and he followed him. He found the stranger fumbling with the lock at a side door of the Blomberg home.

"What's in that bag?" the officer demanded as he approached the crouching figure.

"Stick 'em up, Buddy," was the response of the burglar at he drew an automatic and covered the officer. Then the gunman leaped from the porch and fled across the lawn.

The policeman had his revolver in his hand by this time. He fired twice at the fleeing figure. The first shot, it is believed, crashed through the burglar's jaw and mouth. The officer saw his man drop. He started towards him.

Suddenly there was a spurt of yellow flame and the sharp report of a revolver shot from the dark spot in the shrubbery where the burglar was lying. The officer dropped with a bullet through his lung. Then came four more shots from the revolver of the wounded thug. All took effect in the police man's body. Two shots shattered the left ankle of the helpless policeman. Another shattered the bone in his right hand, while the last shot shattered the [illegible] of his thigh.

A TRAIL OF BLOOD

Using the policeman's stove to return from the dead, his strength was gone but his determination was so great that when fellow officers found him his hand clutched his service revolver, which he picked up in the struggle with the wounded thug.

In the meantime Kelly dragged himself to the front door, fell down the street, leaving a trail of blood. At frequent intervals he paused to regain his strength.

In front of the home of Charles Williams at 95 Temple st. the burglar collapsed.

"Want a lift, Buddy?" Smith asked solicitously.

Get the hell out of here," was the response of the almost helpless man as he shoved a revolver in their direction. Smith and O'Brien ran breathlessly to the police station and told their story.

The blood trail finally led to the capture of the burglar. Then in the hospital, even while dying, he battled with Patrolman Miller who was sent to guard him, as well as with the nurses on duty in the ward.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Davis told his secretary, Miss Emma Bennett of Winthrop, by telephone that he did not believe that the stocks could be disposed of, all being registered and requiring his signature before they could be transferred, but it is known that police, while not aware of the complete contents of the strongbox, have feared that whatever stocks it contained might be given to "fences" by the sneak thieves to dispose of in other cities of the country.

In the strong box, which is said to be large, of steel construction and tinted to resemble mahogany, were the following stocks, according to Miss Bennett:

Between 400,000 and 500,000 shares of Central Manitoba Mines, Ltd., representing one block. It is worth about $1 a share.

One thousand shares of American Powder Co.

Four hundred and fifty-nine shares of American Radiator Co.

One thousand five hundred shares of Splitdorf Electric Bethlehem Co.

Several shares of stock of the Winnipeg Golf Club.

Gold bonds of the Tabor academy, representing $15,000.

Gold mortgage bonds of the Salem Country Club, worth $6000.

Between $100 and $200 in gold pieces.

PURSE SNATCHER USED STOLEN PLATES ON AUTO

A purse snatcher who escaped with a hand bag which he grabbed from Miss Alice C. She succeeded in remembering the registration of the machine.

HUB-LYNN TRAIN JUMPS RAILS; MANY WALK

Hundreds of Lynn work-goers went on foot or borrowed rides today following derailment of the ensign drawing the 7.32 train from Lynn to Boston.

The pony trucks of the engine left the rails at the Lynn Common depot crossing of the Saugus branch only a few minutes after the train had pulled out of Lynn depot.

In the belief of Engineer L. G. Tanner and Fireman H. G. Clark, the derailment was caused by a brake shoe dropped off one of the trolleys that use the same rails.

Two score passengers on the train asked auto rides to Boston while trolley passengers in Lynn traveling that line hiked to work.

HUB WOMAN IN QUEST OF LOVE FINDS DEATH

Robbery is believed by Washington authorities to have been the motive for the crime.

DIVORCED IN 1923.

They are questioning two men, one of whom, Archie F. Moock, a mill worker, is said to have started out with Mrs. Clark Saturday night to drive her Couer A'Alene, Idaho, where she was to become the bride of a man she had never met.

Letters found upon her body indicated Mrs. Clark was formerly a resident of Watertown, Mass., and that she had been divorced since 1923.

While Massachusetts and Washington authorities sought further to establish her identity and find her family about Boston, details of the slaying remained a mystery.

F. C. Winklepleck and George C. Tyrell, Spokane fruit pickers, working at Foothills, entered the old Davis fortress just before dusk yesterday in search of water.

BODY WAS BATTERED.

In a still heap behind a bit of shrubbery growing inside the fortress walls, they found Mrs. Clark's body.

She bore, in addition to the head wounds which doubtlessly caused her death, a number of large bruises over her body, and there was a trail for considerable distance along the ground as if the body had been dragged to its hiding place after the murder.

Letters taken from Mrs. Clark's body by the Washington authorities indicated she received her divorce in Watertown in 1925. It is more likely, local police point out, that she was a resident of Watertown, for divorces in Middlesex county are granted in Cambridge.

ROBERY IS MOTIVE

Moock, who is held for questioning while an autopsy is being performed, is a mill worker. It was to him, police say, that Mrs. Clark went after arriving in Spokane from the East to participate in a "mail order" marriage.

The identity of the second man held was not revealed nor did police disclose on what information they based their theory that robbery was the motive for the crime.

'POLLY AND HER PALS' SPEED TO TUNNEY

By PAUL A. WILLIAMS,
(Universal Service Staff Correspondent.)

Aboard the S. S. Saturnia, Sept 24 (By Radio)—"Polly and her pals" have begun auspiciously the momentous voyage that is to end with Polly Lauder's marriage to the retired heavyweight pugilist, Gene Tunney.

They were joined in New York by a pair of swallows that circled the boat at intervals of a few minutes, always returning to a certain lifeboat, in the bow of the Saturnia, where they had set up temporary housekeeping.

Regarding this nesting pair as a good omen, Polly ordered for them a half-loaf of bread daily to sustain them in their strange surroundings until the Saturnia reaches the Italian shore.

Free at last from the unwelcome and persistent publicity that had hounded her since the announcement of her engagement, Polly at sea had her first real rest in weeks.

DISTURBED BY SIREN

Disturbed by the ship's siren through the night as the Saturnia dashed through fog, she did not arise yesterday until noon. She arrived late at the luncheon table, where her young brother, George, Faith Rockefeller and Helen Ufford already were seated.

Polly scanned the passenger list and seemed disappointed when she did not see her name there.

Although the social registerites occupy a $6000 suite, with surroundings to which the patrician Polly is well accustomed, there are numerous other scarcely less exalted members of society on board.

WINS HORSE RACES

They displayed keen interest in the miniature horse races held on deck Saturday afternoon and when these were over they promenaded.

Mrs. Lauder, Polly's mother, was lucky at the races, winning two of the events which paid odds of 4 to 1 each.

Altogether the business of acquiring James Joseph Tunney seems to be fraught with an augury of good fortune, if the swallows and the outcome of the horse racing are indications.

Polly did not attend yesterday the church services conducted on board by the Roman Catholic priest. She made a late appearance on deck wearing a sea-green dress with tan silk stockings, sports shoes and multicolored scarf, which prevented the breeze from toying with her raven tresses.

"JAY WALKING" FINE BELIEVED ILLEGAL

Although the City of Boston's penal code provides for a maximum fine of $20 for persons convicted of "jay walking," the members of the board of street commissioners believe that the jay walking fine is illegal. This is indicated in the new traffic rules of the board which become effective Oct. 3.

Commenting on the new regulations, as affecting pedestrians, Mgr. Charles T. Harding, of the board of street commissioners said:

"Pedestrians are sufferers in the great majority of accidents, and children under 7 years of age are special victims of street accidents. One of the objects of the street commissioners in promulgating this pedestrian regulation was to safeguard the lives of our children, of our feeble old people, and our careless men and women from physical injury.

"It will also tend to prevent drivers of vehicles from being annoyed and harassed by careless, thoughtless persons."

The rules for pedestrians in the new traffic regulations were the suggested rules by Director Miller McClintock of Harvard, and the mayor's street traffic advisory board.

WILL 'JAY WALKERS' BE FINED?

NEW TRAFFIC CODE IN EFFECT SOON
While a maximum penalty of $20 is provided for traffic rule violations, it is not expected that the "jay walkers" will be subjected to it although technically, in a reading of the new traffic regulations which go into effect October 8, a "jay walker" might be supposed to be subjected to them. It was definitely established that the board of street commissioners as a whole took the "jay walker" with their eyes open to the legal aspect of the case, for they knew there was no State law for the conduct of pedestrians and therefore they could not regulate them.

SENATOR DAVIS DECLINES POST MONK QUIT

Senator J. Bradford Davis of Haverhill today told Governor Fuller that he did not care to be State insurance commissioner.

The Governor, in a recent speech at Amesbury, intimated that Davis would succeed to the position resigned by Wesley E. Monk, during the crisis over compulsory automobile insurance rates.

After a short conference with the Governor at the State House today, Senator Davis said:

"I was recently renominated for the Senate from the Fourth Essex District by a very complimentary majority. I consider I have more opportunity to serve the people of the State as Senator than as insurance commissioner. I very deeply appreciate the confidence Governor Fuller expressed in my service in the Senate."

BOSTON ARTIST RETURNS AFTER 20 YEARS SPENT ABROAD—BETTY ALDEN

Lived and Painted in Brittany and on Algerian Oasis; To Exhibit Work Shortly

TWENTY YEARS AWAY FROM BOSTON WOULD APPEAR, to certain minds, an exile from Utopia without one ray of enlightening sunshine. To Robert Bowen, dividing this span between charmed existence in a Brittany village and life in a fairytale home in the midst of Northern Africa's burning wastes, two decades is none too long and contains not one uninteresting hour. The present Boston interlude, spent at the Hotel Sheraton, varies life pleasantly and affords old friends and admirers of this internationalist a leisure for acquaintanceship's renewal and a view of his pictures, this latter opportunity to come a bit later in the Rose Room of the Sheraton.

THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD, ITS SEAS AND ITS CONTINENTS, have been material for Mr. Bowen's brush, which delves as delightfully in oils as in aquarelles. Brittany's legend-old mellowness and beauty of life and landscape has afforded him an incomparable field. What artist at some time during his career does not make that spot his mecca and spend a season or two there-in? Naturally, too, Northern Africa's glinting sands an' painted sunsets are rich endowment to eyes and hands attuned to beauty. During years in so enchanted a region Mr. Bowen has caught every fleeting light and changing color.

TRUST THE PAINTER FRATERNITY, CONSCIOUSLY OR unconsciously, to invest its daily life with storybook glamor and ring round its most ordinary comings and goings with romanticism. Mr. Bowen's Breton village home fitted perfectly into an artistic background. So does his North African establishment on the edge of the desert. Liege lord is he of a palm shaded home, an oasis twenty miles outside Algiers, and a retinue of many Algerian servants. What more inspiring surroundings could a painter man ask, and what more adoring servants than his Algerian staff, with whom he rides about with all the state of a desert chieftain, and who anticipate his every whim.

IN THE NOT VERY NEAR FUTURE MR. BOWEN RETURNS to this fairylike spot. But only after he commences to find New England a winter bound locality lacking in warmth and color. And even then he does not hasten immediately to Africa. I believe his present plans include a trip half around the world and a stay in China as long as vagrant fancy dictates. Meanwhile arrangements for the Boston exhibition go on apace, and thus add to the autumn's list a one man show unusually diverting.

HAVING FULFILLED HIS JUDGE DUTIES AT THE UXBRIDGE Show, Samuel Shaw of Brookline is off to other fields on the horse show circuit, along with certain enthusiasts of his ilk. Groton hunt show, the Worcester affair, Springfield's big horsey occasion, and finally Brockton, keep one of his proclivities moving briskly about New England for a month or more. Full of enthusiasm for the Uxbridge show is Mr. Shaw, for its many young people entering and riding their horses, for its sportsmanship and the gay camaraderie of everyone concerned. Uxbridge people, headed by Charles Root and Stanley Wheelock and a large committee, conceded that while their show is one of the smaller ones, it lacks nothing in the way of horseflesh or interest to make it a genuine sport occasion.

THE ELIOT SPALDINGS ARE FILLING THEIR NORTH SHORE house next week-end with young people of the debutante-college youth persuasion. Girls who have come out this season and girls yet to experience that once-in-a-lifetime thrill will be domiciled beneath the hospitable Spalding roof. Miss Elizabeth Morison is one of this so fortunate coterie, going to the North Shore after a fling about New York shops and emporiums devoted to feminine fripperies. The Spaldings have a sub-debutante daughter of their own, a charming miss, carefully reared, now receiving the finishing touches at Miss Lee's and destined for bud excitements next winter, so I believe it is written on the cards.

CHARMING EQUESTRIENNE

Miss Nancy Shaw is a true daughter of the sport loving North Shore set. She rides expertly about country lanes or in society horse shows.

FOR THE POST-DEBUTANTE WHO HAS DURING A COMING-OUT winter danced through many ecstatic miles and countless satin slippers, lunched, teaed, dined and supped to repletion and "gone on" from one function to another, mere business routine and hours have no terrors. Miss Juliet Greene, pretty daughter of Mrs. Bertram W. B. Greene, finds all sorts of thrills in arduous business and the creation of her own place in the busy workaday world. Long hours downtown are but happy relaxation to the gay young thing who experienced a first season and turned night into day, whirled the whole winter through in one mad rush. Miss Greene is just one more society recruit to business. I believe her affiliation is with one of Tremont st.'s fine old establishments and that she adores the work.

CERTAINLY SHE LOOKED BRIGHT AS THE PROVERBIAL dollar as she wended her way downtown one day recently. A charming girl, a well poised one, a girl who has been about the world and into many of its capitals; whose social progress was most enviable, Miss Greene will be a success in whatever path she follows, utilitarian or frivolous. Miss Hope Patterson is still another pretty girl to come out successfully, large a while among the butterflies and then turn seriously to a career. Pretty as a picture is Miss Patterson, now in the centre of the big city about to embark on regular routine and hold a position against all competition.

DEATH TOLL IN MADRID FIRE REACHES 120

Madrid, Sept. 24 (INS)—Police today estimated that at least 120 persons perished in the fire which destroyed the Novedades Theater, one of the largest and most popular in this city, during a performance last night.

Fifty bodies, charred and burned beyond recognition, have been recovered, but at least 50 persons are missing and are believed to have perished.

Police, firemen and Government troops continued to search the smouldering ruins for additional victims today.

All the hospital facilities of the city are co-operating in caring for victims of the catastrophe. There were 370 persons under treatment at the hospitals and private homes. Many of these are in a serious condition and it is feared some may die.

The fire started upon the stage during an intermission. To prevent an immediate panic, the orchestra leader continued to play but an explosion followed which killed several of the musicians.

In five minutes, the whole building was a roaring inferno. The theater, an old-fashioned affair having six wooden balconies, was like tinder to the flames.

Several children were found alive in the ruins of the theater today. They had been saved by the dead who had fallen on them and protected them from the flames.

HILLES AVERS PARTY 'WANTS NO BIGOTS'

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—Prohibition and prohibition are questions that will determine the result of the presidential campaign, said Charles D. Hilles, Republican national committeeman for New York, in addressing the Women's National Republican Club today.

Neither religion, nor farm relief, nor foreign relations was a platform issue, Mr. Hilles said, although he admitted the first two were factors.

Tammany tacticians, he asserted, were seeking to make prohibition the controlling issue.

"Tammany thinks," Mr. Hilles continued, "that if the people are driven to consideration of a single subject in this campaign, as they did in 1896, when Mr. Bryan made free silver this paramount issue, or in 1916, when Mr. Wilson's main reliance was upon the claim that he kept us out of the war, that the dominant issue will be prohibition.

RELIGION NOT ISSUE.

"Realistic politicos who think as Tammany does, that this question transcends in importance all other considerations, agree that if Governor Smith wins it will be a wet victory, pure and simple.

Expressing the opinion that religion was not one of the controversial questions, Mr. Hilles added:

"It would be fatuous to say that it will not be a factor. We must make due allowance for religious sympathies and antipathies, and for the passions that will influence the mind of the voter but no friend of the republic will introduce into the campaign a word of intolerance toward a religious sect nor will he introduce as an essential element an unwillingness to tolerate a candidate in the enjoyment of his religious opinions and worship.

WANTS NO BIGOTS.

"We do not desire the support of bigots who put creed before country. America is a land of opportunity. Hoover is a product of it and so is Smith. And America is a land which has declared in its fundamental law that a man's religion shall not affect political preferment.

"Let us therefore in this campaign consider solely the issues which concern the welfare of the country, and not those which lead to futile discussion."

Ford to Erect Museum, Monument to Edison

Detroit, Sept. 24 (AP)—A large museum is to be erected by Henry Ford in his "ancient village" near Dearborn as a monument to Thomas A. Edison. It will house most of the original inventions of the wizard of East Orange.

Announcement of the project was made today along with the statement that Edison will arrive in Dearborn Tuesday to participate in the cornerstone laying ceremonies.

In addition to the early working models of Edison's inventions, the building, to be known as the "Edison Museum," will house also his laboratory tools, notebooks and paraphernalia used during the years when he was perfecting the telegraph, motion pictures and other devices.

TEN JAVA LEPERS KILLED IN REVOLT AT TREATMENT

Batavia, Java, Sept. 24 (AP)—A telegram from Kota Radja, northern Sumatra, today said 10 lepers were killed and four wounded when a colony resisted effort of officials to treat them.

The district commissioner and his military escort had to fire in self-defence when the lepers, numbering 29 and including both men and women, attacked the officials with knives and lances.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

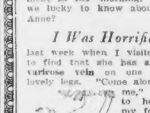
Dearest Anne:

I Have Something

to tell you! It's not about the early bird and the worm" but about the early customer who, if she makes an appointment with the Beauty Shop of Houghton & Dutton Company on the second floor between the hours of nine and eleven in the morning, will receive a special price of one-fourth off on all her work during that time. Frederics Vita-Tonic method permanents, which do not injure delicate shades of hair, are priced at $10. Just think how much she'll save if she makes appointment in the morning. Aren't we lucky to know about this, Anne?

I Was Horrified

last week when I visited Heth to find that she has an ugly varicose vein on one of her lovely legs. "Come along with me," I said to her, "to my Scott Specialist, Dr. A. P. Sault at 120 Tremont St., 3rd floor, and get an almost invisible elastic stocking priced at $8.75, for I know you'll be very glad if you do so." She did and while she was there she got a pair of Scott shoes to measure arch support shoes priced at $8. He gives expert treatments for corns, bunions and runs advice on foot troubles. Stockings and shoes may be ordered by mail!



Summer Waves

by the seashore have been ours to enjoy, Anne! All our friends who have their Fall waves at the shop of L. Cunningham at 561 Boylston St. will enjoy them, too, for they may have a Eugene method permanent, a Frederics Vita-Tonic or a Nestle for the small price of $6 to $10 a curl. If you wish an Insecto hair dye you may have one given by an expert. Perhaps you are letting your hair grow and wish a hair piece made of your own combings. If so, telephone Back Bay 9089 and make an appointment!

Your Finger Nails

are gorgeous, my Anne, and their gleam and glow like the Indigo of lovely shells. Pearlie surely is the liquid nail polish for you to use, for it gives your nails such a natural shine. It is priced at $1 for a box of polish and one of remover at S. S. Pierce Company's store at 69 Tremont St. Of course it couldn't be otherwise than exceptionally good when it is made in Hyannisport, the home of Priscilla Pearls. This is a truly unique preparation and it enhances the beauty of your hands, while the more you wash them the more lustrous and natural the glossy look becomes.

Did You Know

that our old friend, L. Max, at 154 Boylston st., above third floor, had charge of the hair dyeing department at the National Hairdressers' Convention held here in Boston a few weeks ago. He is surely an expert with the hair dyeing Daylight booths and is possible for him to make correct judgment on the shades of dyes. Hair that has been spoiled by harsh dyes is brought back like magic in his capable hands. For permanents and finger waving done by operators, skilled, indeed, call Capitol 5851 for appointment.

While It Seems

quite natural for your dark hair to turn gray as Time takes its inevitable toll, yet in this day and age men and women endeavor to keep their own shade of hair, for in this way they keep looking smart and free the contact of business and playtime in the assurance that they are "young-old" people. Wise men and women use the Ann J. Machlala Hair Color Restorer, a magic preparation to restore the color of your hair. It is not a dye but brings back the natural color and glinting sheen once yours. The price is $1 a bottle at the S. S. Pierce Company, 69 Tremont St. Restor-A-Viv prevents and eliminates wrinkles, another sign of approaching age. This is priced at $1. It strengthens the tissues and is made of bland oil, rich in those building constituents. Cuti Tone (Witch Wash) is a perfect astringent and is good to tighten loose and flabby skin. Invaluable for a daily wash for the face and neck. It's really ideal to carry away with you on week-end trips for it takes the place of soap and water. It is priced at $1 a bottle. Try the Ann J. Machlala product suited to your special need!

It's Truly Fine

to know that you are dealing with an exceptionally square concern when you buy anything these days and indeed I am glad that we have found Scott Furriers at 69 Summer Street. They have really solved the fur coat problem and have made it possible for you to enjoy their most economical payment plan. You may join their Unique Fur Club, making a small initial payment on your coat and small weekly or monthly payments while wearing it, or open a 30, 60 or 90-day charge account when your coat is taken out. Dependable furs of Hudson Seal (Dyed Muskrat), Seal-Dyed Coney, Beaver, Squirrel, Caracul, Leopard and many others are priced from $90 to $550. Scott's do not sell Squirrelettes, Muskrattens, Pieced Raccoons, Calf-skin Coats, Kid Carraculs, Leopardines and other furs of inferior skins because they cannot honestly guarantee their wearing qualities. They accept your old coat as a first deposit on your new one and no charge is made for storage. Perhaps you have heard Scott Furriers Symphony Orchestra from Station WBZ and WBZA Sunday evenings at 9.15. Thru the week listen for Scott's shopping news and music from Station WNAC (1158), WLAC and WTIC. This hour of music is truly delightful as is their wondrous shop. Their slogan is "a fur coat for every woman in New England!"

Do You Remember

last spring when you were "marching into March" and having so much trouble with enlarged pores in your face? I do and I also recall how delighted you were when you consulted with Miss Jean Hubbard who was representing Dorothy Gray at Filene's Toilet Goods Dept., First Floor. She is back again and is to be here all this week and will be glad to tell you just how you may best bleach out that tan you got this summer for while it was most attractive when upon close it isn't going to look quite as nice with your lovely evening clothes. Each and every woman has a "Dowry of Beauty" and is striving towards delicacy of texture, a velvety feeling, bright color, elimination of wrinkles and attaining a firm contour—the properties of a lovely skin. Dorothy Gray's Cleansing Cream liquefies at once when applied and cleanses your skin thoroughly without stretching the pores. It is priced at $1. Orange Flavor Skin Tonic is a mild and fragrant astringent. Pat it on after using the cleansing cream and it will close the pores and stimulate the skin. It is priced at $5. Dorothy Gray's Special Mixture is blended from rich imported oils especially recommended for dry and sensitive skins. The price is $2.25. You'll find these all at Filene's and you must surely consult with Miss Hubbard before she leaves.

The Spanish Galleries

of Chandler & Co., Tremont St. at West, have some of the darlingest coats in the Junior Misses' department that I have ever seen. You'll wish you were high school age again when you see them and that you might have one.

Perhaps you could get one to fit, for they come in sizes from 13 to 18. The price is only $25.50. The colors are black, shades of brown and tan, wing color, green and they are made of the softest quality broadcloth. Adorably exquisite collars and cuffs are made of opossum, some in its natural color and some of opossum dyed to an enchanting brown tinge. They are lined throughout with satin and made in youthful swanky styles with ties and dainty inside pockets made of silk. While their comfortable qualities and plain styles make them just the right coat for school, the charming exquisiteness of the materials of which they are made fit them for formal wear, too. There'll be a great rushing tide of shoppers during the week wending their way down the red stairs to the Spanish Galleries. You mustn't miss them, Anne!

I Couldn't Believe

the evidence of my eyes when I saw the perfectly marvelous Fall Coats on sale at Silver's Specialty Shop at 59 Temple Place, Blake Bldg., Room 502, at the small price of $35. They are really $45 values and come in marvelous styles and colors. There are Velvets, Broadcloths and Ramshed coats with trimmings of Fox, Caracul, Baby Seal and Marmink. A Graceful Neck and a beautiful complexion tinged with pink and the glow of health, free from all blemishes, such as pimples, blackheads, wrinkles, sallow skin, dry or oily skin, large pores, thick neck, flabby folds and all skin imperfections, are yours, simply by close attention and application to Dr. John Post's Medical Facials and Beauty Course, simple, easy and inexpensive home treatment. Call Mrs. Gardner, Mgr. Medical and Facial Depts., Haymarket 1647, for appointment and have a $5 facial demonstration for $2 and prove what you can do for yourself at home. Post Institute, Beacon Bldg., 6 Beacon St., Room 210.

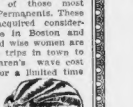
"The Going-Back-To-College" Girl

chooses accessories for her room in bright contrasting colors, but she does so with a thought as to how compact her clothes may be and how much room she may conserve. A Wardrobe Bag priced at $2.75 will add color and usefulness to her closet or an exquisite vanity box with separate compartments and large mirror priced at $3.65. A shoe bag to match, in 8-pocket size, is priced at 50c. Of course a stocking bag is a real necessity and she buys one for 50c to match her other things. She then adds a colorful laundry bag to her purchases and all the year she's glad that she visited the Art Embroideries Section, Fourth Floor, Main Store, of Jordan Marsh Company.

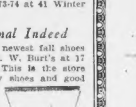
Karen's Hair Is

that lovely Titian shade and it's truly gorgeous just now, for she has had one of those most famous Strail Permanents. These waves have acquired considerable fame here in Boston and out of town and wise women are making special trips in town to have them. Karen's wave cost $15, but now for a limited time these perfect waves are priced at only $8—any style you may choose! Have a finger or water wave in the Strail manner, for their excellent habit of "staying in" will delight your pride and pocketbook. Any bleaching, hair dyeing or any line of Beauty Culture call Liberty 8443. Strail's Beauty Salon, Rooms 73-74 at 41 Winter St.



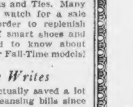
Exceptional Indeed

is the sale of newest fall shoes going on at E. W. Burt's at 17 West Street. This is the store of fine quality shoes and good values. Just think what it means to buy for $10 shoes ordinarily priced at $12.75 to $15.50! There are Brown Suedes, so popular for Autumn wear, Black Suede, Patent Leather, Mat Kid and Genuine Alligators. These come in Operas, Oxfords, Strap Effects, Step-Ins and Ties. Many of our friends watch for a sale at Burt's in order to replenish their supply of smart shoes and they'll be glad to know about this in time for Fall-Time models!



Molly Writes

that she has actually saved a lot of money on cleansing bills since she heard about Annette's Perfect Cleaner. It's priced, you know, at 50 cents for a generous bottle. These at Meyer Jonasson & Company's Toilet Goods Department, First Floor. It surely works like magic on Molly's clothes, for it removes spots of grease, oil, tea, coffee, milk, cream, syrup, water, medication and various other things from her lovely frocks harmlessly without leaving rings. It is particularly good for silks, velvets, woods, felt hats and furs. Just think of the money to be saved in a year if you do your own cleansing!



What a georgeous day we have had my Anne! But can any day however glorious it may be compares with these moonlight nights in September?

I particularly enjoy shopping during the Fall, too, for it seems as if the shops take on such radiant color just as if they were doing so because of the gorgeous raiment the woods will soon adorn.

Try and make an early train next week for there'll be many shops to visit with your Priscilla.

ANALYST SEES BAY STATE THE CENTER OF PRESIDENTIAL FIGHT

AL LEADS ONLY IN CITIES

appraisement of the last flop Massachusetts may be in a class by itself.

Two developments of the past week have injected new confusion into the babel of political tongues that is swelling from the sea to the Berkshires. One was the Republican vote polled in the State-wide primary. The other was the vote-pulling State ticket named by the Democrats.

The Republicans gleaned some little comfort from the primary vote Tuesday, which approximated 400,000. On the same primary day two years before they registered half that number.

But the Republicans put on several hot contests for the State nominations, whereas the Democrats virtually had no family rows and there was no appeal to the electorate except the general plea of making as good a showing as possible to indicate the healthiness of the Smith sentiment.

What encouragement the Coolidge-Hoover-Butler forces get out of the primary enrollment, which is a record-breaker, based on the assumption that Massachusetts will provide faithful to her G. O. P. traditions if the vote can be got out. Apparently it came out in a very large percentage last Tuesday.

WELL-BALANCED TICKET

The Republican primary vote, in fact, totaled 720,000 in excess of the entire Democratic vote in November, 1924. The Davis vote was 280,000.

On the other hand, the Democratic State ticket is conceded to be about as well balanced as any ever nominated by the Jeffersonians. Besides, practically every nominee is of such a character as to appeal rather strongly to the independent voters, regardless of the division with respect to the national ticket.

For Governor, the Democrats nominated Gen. Charles H. Cole. He commanded the 51st brigade of the Yankee Division in France. Some insist that Gen. Cole is the most popular soldier in Massachusetts, and that his popularity has increased greatly since Armistice Day.

John F. Malley, past grand exalted ruler of the Elks, is the nominee for lieutenant governor. The ambitered local group to reckon with, not only around Beacon Hill, but throughout the State, and Malley is one of their most highly esteemed representatives.

Edward P. Barry, their candidate for attorney general, is a gentleman, a scholar and well thought of.

Then, to cap the structure with the keystone, there is Frank A. Goodwin, David I. Walsh, who was renamed without opposition. His vote-pulling ability is not questioned or underestimated in Massachusetts. He always has run like Governor Smith in New York—miles ahead of the rest of the ticket.

So it is that the Smith chances have been helped not a little by the general tone of the State ticket and will carry the national banner to comparatively few hamlet of the State.

Nevertheless, the Hearst poll, while indicating Smith's unquestioned lead today, shows clearly that the country districts are going in almost as large a percentage for Hoover as the Boston and other city votes are piling up for Smith. Even on this basis of comparison, Smith still has the edge.

The cities' vote show Smith running ahead of Hoover about 120 to one, while the country vote doesn't give Hoover quite that percentage of predominance.

FALL TO SELL HIS BIG RANCH FOR $800,000

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 24 (AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior, recuperating in the Southwest from his serious illness of last spring, has announced he intends soon to dispose of his Three Rivers, N. M., ranch to Clay Mann, New York, Colorado and Texas cattleman. The reported consideration, including the stock, is said to be approximately $800,000.

Fall sold the Tres Ritos Cattle & Land Company holdings to the ranch, and that Harry F. Sinclair is the only person outside his immediate family to hold stock in the WILLEBRANDT SPEECH CALLED BACK BY G. O. P.

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP)—Five mimeographed pages of Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt's address in part" before the Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Lorain, O., were recalled last night from newspapers to which they had been sent by western headquarters of the Republican national committee.

No reason for the action was given. The publicity had been distributed to the Chicago press and other newspapers in this territory. It was published in full "Address in part of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant U. S. Attorney-General, before the seventy-fifth conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Lorain, O., Sunday, September 24."

In the upper left hand corner of the first page of the publicity was the mimeographed notation: "From Republican national committee, Chicago, Ill."

The only comment on the action at western Republican headquarters was that a mistake had been made, copies of the publicity were picked up at Chicago newspaper offices by a commercial telegraph company messenger.

Speech Delivered at Ohio Church Prohibition Rally

Lorain, O., Sept. 24 (AP)—The reply of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney-general, to criticisms of Governor Smith was delivered at an open prohibition rally held by the Northeast Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Willebrandt, who said that because Governor Smith raised the religious issue in attacking her in a campaign address at Oklahoma City he must "accept the consequences of his act before the bar of public opinion," altered closely to the text of her prepared address.

The auditorium was crowded with ministers and laymen of the church and her thrusts at the Democratic presidential candidate because of his prohibition stand were met with frequent cheers.

"Religion has nothing to do with it," Mrs. Willebrandt said. "We condemn his (Smith's) record, acts and utterances. Those acts have spoken for themselves. They will not whisper. So he seeks to shield himself behind a religious issue. It looks like a raised handful in the commotion."

She charged the churches were justified in entering the campaign by Smith's message to the Houston convention, Prohibition she termed a "moral issue which the churches have long espoused."

She charged that it was "given a place in the campaign" by Governor Smith in an effort "to split the dry forces" along sectional lines.

SMITH TO LOCK HORNS WITH HOOVER

sible for their acts when in control of the machinery of government, and that such being the case Mr. Hoover must bear his share of responsibility for the eight years' record, the more so because he was a Cabinet officer in the two administrations.

Today marked the end of the first week of Smith's active campaign for the presidency. It found him confident, pleased with his receptions in the West, and well satisfied with the political outlook.

"I have visited the past week parts of the country I never had before," he said. "The enthusiasm and size of the crowds at every stop has been very pleasing and cause me to be very hopeful. I am entirely satisfied with the week's work."

JOINED BY SENATORS

Senator B. K. Wheeler joined the Smith train soon after it crossed the Montana line, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, oil scandals prosecutor, will appear with him on the latter half of his journey through the state.

Montana is one of the few Western states where the Democratic nominee's actions is accounted no handicap. The great mining centers are notoriously wet. The wets also carried the state two years ago on a referendum as to whether the Volstead act should be repealed.

Governor Smith's schedule in Montana is so arranged that he will spend two days in the state. His train crosses the Wyoming-Montana line early this morning.

Billings was the first stop. He arrives in Helena at 4 o'clock this afternoon, speaks there tonight and remains overnight. Tomorrow he will leave the capital at 10 a. m., arriving at Butte at 1 p. m. for an hour's stay. Bozeman and Livingston are other scheduled stops.

Then Governor Smith turns eastward through North Dakota, en route to Minneapolis and Milwaukee, the terminus of the present Western tour.

HOOVER PLANS TO SPEAK ON WATER POWER

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 24—In keeping with his purpose to conduct an affirmative campaign, Herbet Hoover will make a public address in October on the subject of governmental regulation of water power and public utilities.

The Republican presidential nominee will "speak his mind" on this issue, it was said, because he feels the public has a right to know his views, and not in any sense as a reply to the attack of Governor Alfred E. Smith, his Democratic rival.

One of his advisers explained Hoover's attitude, thusly: "In making his own constructive campaign, Mr. Hoover has no cause for Governor Smith. That would be engaging in personalities. Before the end of the campaign, though, he will make his own views on the power question perfectly plain, so everybody will understand them."

"HEART OF POWER TRUST"

Another of Hoover's associates said:

"Governor Smith is living in a glass house. He attacks Hoover because two government engineers, much underpaid, accepted more lucrative posts in private business.

"The governor would do well to tell the people why he named a director of the General Motors Company as his campaign manager and why the chairman of the Board of the General Electric Company and the president of the Montana Power Company are among the heaviest contributors to his campaign fund. The two latter concerns are the heart and soul of the power trust."

The Hoover leaders meanwhile "gave the lie" to one of the whispers being circulated against the Republican nominee, after Senator William C. Bruce (D) of Maryland gave it publicity in a speech Saturday night. Bruce said he heard that Hoover and Clarence Darrow had had "numerous drinks of liquor" together, and charged Hoover with hypocrisy on this stand.

GIVES LIE TO BRUCE.

"Senator Bruce is simply giving circulation to slander," commented George Akerson, Hoover secretary. "Mr. Hoover does not know Mr. Darrow and it is a falsehood to say they had drinks together."

With Darrow also issuing a denial of the charges, Hoover headquarters said that the Republican nominee has not touched liquor since the prohibition law went into effect. Hoover is a personal friend and Mrs. Hoover a lifelong ardent prohibitionist. Both have refused to attend social functions where liquor is served and they act principally with people who do not serve liquor in their homes.

Van Dyke Hits Moderator for Call to Back Hoover

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 24 (AP)—Dr. Henry Van Dyke lashed a statement in which he said in part:

"The folly and danger of dragging the church into politics has just received a new illustration. Dr. Walker, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, has just issued a pronunciamento in the official organ of that church, in which, uniting in his official capacity, he declares it is the plain duty of every churchman to work and pray and vote for the election of Herbert Hoover.'

"This is an astounding attitude. May a humble Presbyterian, who has himself held the honorable office of moderator in that church, be permitted to say politely by what right or authority Dr. Walker assumes this 'temporal dofinion' in the United States?"

25 MEN AND 2 WOMEN NABBED IN CHICAGO RAIDS

Chicago, Sept. 24 (AP)—A series of week-end raids that snared 25 men and two women and netted a haul today as one of the greatest single blows at Chicago crime in recent months. More than 100 crimes also have been solved as an outcome of the arrests, Deputy Commissioner Stege said.

Among crimes regarding which the commissioner said confessions were the slaying of Maurice Youngclove, private watchman, during a holdup September 8; the shooting and serious wounding of two policemen and the slaying of John Peters at the Turkish Village Cafe September 21.

Los Angeles, Sept. 24 (INS)—Robert Bow, father of Clara Bow, film actress, today announced that he was married last Saturday to Tui Lorraine, an actress and close friend of his daughter. The ceremony was performed outside of Los Angeles county, he said. How's previous marriage was to Idella Elizabeth Mowery Bow, who was described by the judge who annulled the marriage as Bow's request as "the world's greatest gold digger." Bow married her July, 1924, after meeting her in his daughter's home.

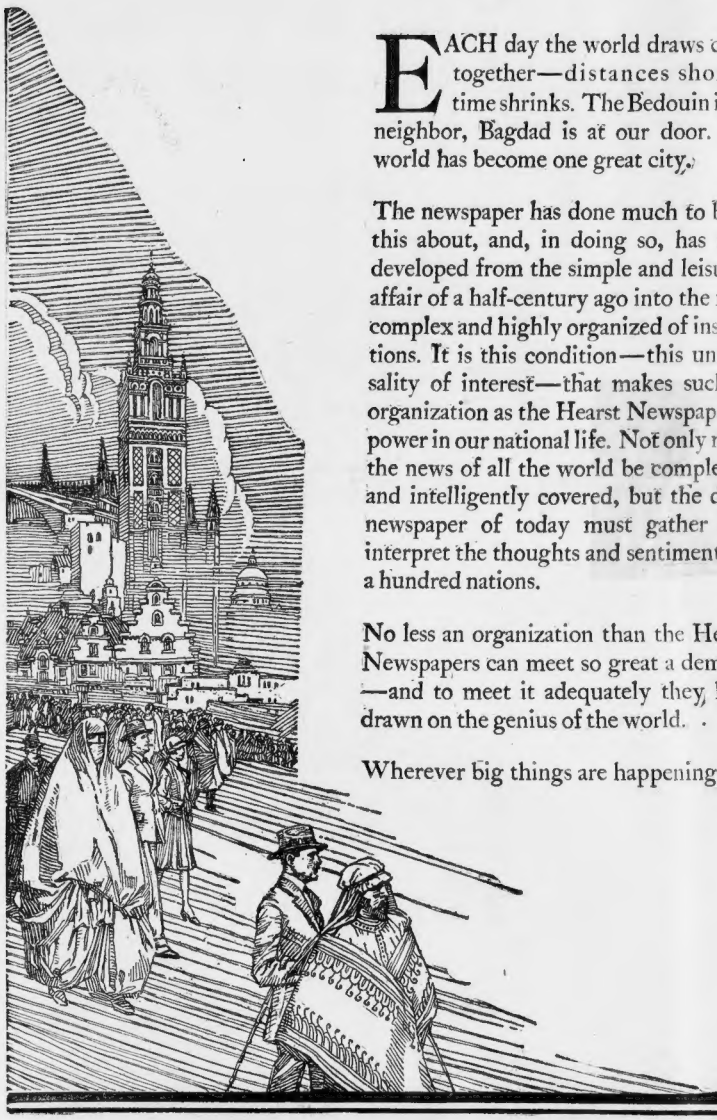
HEARST

The World a City



EACH day the world draws closer together—distances shorten, time shrinks. The Bedouin is our neighbor, Bagdad is at our door. The world has become one great city.

The newspaper has done much to bring this about, and, in doing so, has itself developed from the simple and leisurely affair of a half-century ago into the most complex and highly organized of institutions. It is this condition—this universality of interest—that makes such an organization as the Hearst Newspapers a power in our national life. Not only must the news of all the world be completely and intelligently covered, but the daily newspaper of today must gather and interpret the thoughts and sentiments of a hundred nations.

No less an organization than the Hearst Newspapers can meet so great a demand—and to meet it adequately they have drawn on the genius of the world.

Wherever big things are happening, the men who know the details most intimately tell them to Hearst readers. Statesmen and rulers write the daily story of shifting politics and policies, great scientists reveal the momentous secrets of the laboratory, champions describe their victories, the foremost authors, soldiers, musicians, actors, dramatists, artists, comment on the latest and best in their particular realms. Whatever the field, the story is covered in Hearst Newspapers by the men best qualified to write it—brightly, intelligently, intimately

This reservoir of genius, on which the Hearst Newspapers continually draw, is one reason for their unique position in American journalism. Combined with the vast machinery of distribution necessary to handle more than 5,000,000 newspapers, it gives the Hearst Newspapers an unparalleled place in America—a position of tremendous responsibility as an index and molder of public opinion and an influence on national life.

BRITAIN, SAYS OWN EXPERT, IS OUT TO END U. S. NAVY POWER

By WILLIAM HILLMAN,
Universal Service Special Wireless.

Berlin, Sept. 24—The British admiralty fostered the Franco-British naval pact to destroy and nullify American naval power just as she broke the naval power of Spain, France, Holland and Germany in the past.

This is the blunt charge of Lieut.-Commander J. M. Kenworthy, noted British parliamentarian and naval officer, in an article published here today in the "Berliner Tageblatt." Commander Kenworthy comments:

"After the German sea power had been annihilated, the almighty English admiralty scanned the horizon to discover the next strongest sea power. And it was not long before the English admiralty and the English professional officialdom began to see in the American fleet a threat to the English supremacy of the seas."

The Franco-British naval pact must be dropped by the present British government or the government that succeeds it, declares the English naval authority, since "the agreement is the worst diplomatic mistake ever committed by an English government."

The traditional policy of England in the last 200 years, according to Commander Kenworthy, has been to maintain the balance of power "which the war, the treaty of peace and the League of Nations were supposed to have ended, but didn't."

The noted Briton adds:

"This traditional policy has been resumed by the invisible English Government, which is mightier than the invisible government of any other country.

"England has always endeavored to conclude alliances with other powers against every nation which threatened England's naval supremacy. The English admiralty considered the moment had come for a return to the traditional policy of a balance of power by an alliance with France, which in reality is a reinsurance against the American supremacy of the seas, and that is what it is despite all denials, explanations and excuses."

British-French Pact Bungled; Angers U.S.

By ROBERT J. FREW
Universal Service Special Cable

London, Sept. 24—Under the heading "Bungling in High Places," Reynolds' newspaper says editorially:

"After all the secrecy, half-revelations, hints and incendiary facts about the Franco-British naval pact have been given to the public in the columns of American newspapers. The result is what might be expected.

"Instead of a move in the direction of peace and disarmament it is regarded in America as a move against that country by Britain.

"This is an unfortunate state of affairs for which our government is entirely responsible. By its conduct in these negotiations the government has gone back to old secret diplomacy.

"In this democratic age it is entirely out of place, and its results in nations, which are really a peril to peace, will rightly be resented by the people.

"If we have nothing to be ashamed of in making this pact, the fullest information should be given the public at the earliest possible opportunity. If we have any reason to be ashamed of it, then it should never have been made.

RESULT OF BUNGLING

"The unfortunate atmosphere created by the publication of the agreement is due to the bungling British government, for it was well known that France was all along in favor of its publication.

"When Parliament meets it will be the duty of the Opposition to denounce the authors of the blunder and insist that hereafter open diplomacy suitable to a free and peace loving people as the rule, for any other course is fraught with peril."

The Sunday Times, under the headline "Secretive Diplomacy," editorializes:

"Old-fashioned diplomacy is slow to learn that times have changed. In bygone days it would have been right and proper for the foreign office to have refrained from publishing the Anglo-French naval agreement which caused so much excited comment on both sides of the Atlantic during the last few weeks.

"But under present conditions its secrecy could have been not only unnecessary, but even harmful.

FRANCE BARED FACTS

"The foreign office may plead that it has followed traditional practice by sending the agreement to other governments interested and awaiting their replies before publishing the text.

"But as the contents were partly divulged in Paris a month ago and have given rise to much angry comment in America, it would have been wiser to have given the agreement to the press.

"There is much to be said for the Anglo-French formula. But it was in very likely to be criticized by the American government, which rejected very similar proposals made by W. C. Bridgeman of Canada.

"Now that the American press has been making the most of a needless mystery, it is hard to avoid the impression that England and France were actively conspiring to prevent the development of the American navy. Washington is in no mood to consider the anglo-French formula favorably.

"The mind of the presidential election the Republican Government cannot afford to run the risk of being accused of sacrificing American interests at the dictation of foreign powers.

"Thus the diplomatic reserve of the foreign office really helped to kill the agreement as well as to excite in American minds much more less suspicion of our motives and our policy."

Lesson by a Chef

JOSEPH LANFRANCHI, chef of Hotel Westminster, will give a lesson in the Martha Lee Kitchen next Wednesday at 2 p. m. This certainly will be an event that no progressive housewife, anxious to give a "different" touch to her dishes, can afford to overlook.

Mr. Lanfranchi, born in Italy, has been connected with some of America's best hotels. Among the dishes he will prepare will be salad a la rue, salad nincon, salad diplomate, Hamburg steak (italian style) and gnocchi (mountain style)—all suited for home cookery and not requiring more than the average housewife's skill.

Will you please accept this as your personal invitation to be present? Remember the time, 2 p. m.; the place, in the Martha Lee Kitchen, 5 Winthrop sq.—and the man, Joseph Lanfranchi, chef of the Hotel Westminster.

Two Rules for Eggs

EGGS form a very important part of the household diet—such an important part, in fact, that they are liable to become too much a matter of course and lose their interest. This is unnecessary, for there are many delicious ways of serving eggs. Here is a recipe using them in a dish appropriate either for the breakfast or luncheon menu:

Eggs Au Gratin—For 6 eggs—2 tbsps. butter, 2 tbsps. flour, 1 tsp. salt, 1 c. milk, ½ lb. American cheese, 2 tbsps. prepared mustard, 2 tbsps. bread crumbs.

Sauce—Make a cream sauce by melting butter, adding flour, gradually add milk and cook two minutes. Remove from stove, add half of the grated cheese and seasoning. Carefully open eggs in a baking dish greased. Cover with the sauce, sprinkle with the rest of the cheese and bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven about 12 minutes.

From the Market's Own Watch Tower

Cranberries are now coming into the market—visions of jelly and pies! Even visions of spring are creeping round the corner with dandelions selling at 15 cents for three pounds.

Delaware and Concord grapes have made their first appearance of the season and there are still a few blueberries at 40 cents a quart. Crabapples are more plentiful than last week, and there is a good variety of fish on the market today.

Oysters are with us at 25 to 45 cents a pint. Smelts are coming in, 35 to 50 cents a pound. Sea perch continue high. Lamb legs are reselling from 38 to 45 cents with pork chops as high as 42 cents.

Seasonable Menu for Three Good Meals

Here is a seasonable menu: Breakfast—Plums with fluffy cereal, bean muffins, coffee or milk. Luncheon or supper—Fish cakes, buttered carrots, stewed tomato, baked apples and cream. Dinner—Corn soup, baked ham, squash, parsley potato, cabbage salad, vanilla ice cream and peach sauce.

Here's Recipe for Pineapple Surprise

Even the name is intriguing. Dissolve ½ pkg. raspberry gelatine in ½ c. boiling water. Add ½ c. pineapple juice. Put in mold and chill. Then dissolve 2 tbsp. gelatine in ¼ c. cold water. Add 1 c. hot pineapple juice, ½ c. sugar, juice of ½ lemon. Chill. When this has set add 1 c. whipped cream and 1 c. drained crushed pineapple. Place on top of raspberry gelatine and garnish with pineapple.

Grapes in Season

THE next marketing list you make out should certainly include California Flame Tokay grapes, now in season. These great clusters of firm balls require no more than a glorious flames. Each grape is packed with nectar, and this year they seem particularly fine.

They are only with us for a two-month season, so it behooves us to take full advantage of them. California Flame Tokays are plentiful and moderately priced.

They make a glorious riot of color in the fruit bowl and bring their own invitation for healthful in-between-meal lunches. Kiddies love them and they are wonderfully good for them, for their natural fruit sugar provides quick energy, their mineral salts aid in the digestion of other foods, and their skins are bulk and roughage.

You will find them at your local fruit store or grocer's.

If tell you I would like, how you can secure a booklet of recipes showing new and delicious ways of using this glorious fruit.

Beans for Canning

NOW is the time for canning shell beans (now selling from 14 to 20c a lb.). And here is the idea:

Gather the beans while the p ls are still green and before the beans begin to harden. Hull and wash. Blanch from ten to fifteen minutes in boiling water or twenty minutes in steam. Pack lightly in jars and process, (160 minutes in water bath for pints.

A small piece of pork or bacon or a tomato sauce may be added if desired.

Such common varieties of beans as the lima, Horticultural and a few of the pole beans are most delicious when they are near enough ripe to be easily hulled, and before the pods become dry and the beans are hard. Such beans are also excellent for canning.

Martha Lee Cooking School Welcomed

BOSTON is buzzing with approval over the announcement of the Martha Lee Cooking School to be held in the beautiful ballroom of the Hotel Statler next week under the auspices of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Mrs. Lida Lufkin Cross, celebrated home economics teacher, who will assist Martha Lee in conducting the school, will have a host of ardent women folk awaiting her talks and demonstrations beginning next week Tuesday and running through Friday. The sessions will begin promptly at 2 o'clock each afternoon, and, for the benefit of those who want to be on hand early for seats right up front, the doors will be opened at 1 o'clock. There will be an extra session Friday evening at 7:30, with the doors open at 7 p. m.

It is not very often the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser have the opportunity to contribute an event in the interests of our women readers that needs such enthusiastic response. We feel particularly fortunate in securing the services of so widely admired a lecturer as Mrs. Cross, who has an enviable reputation through-out the nation as a teacher of home economics.

Mrs. Cross has been director of the Food Research Department for a chain of restaurants, has conducted a column for housewives in one of the leading midwest papers and she has written many articles on household subjects for various magazines. She is the author of "Basic Principles of Domestic Science."

She has inspected and acted as consultant for a great number of tea rooms, hotel dining rooms and restaurants, and one time was the director in chief of the Food Conservation Department of Greater New York. In connection with this she was the director of the New York City Canning and Drying Kitchen.

She believes that homemaking is even more a real profession than music or art. It is the oldest profession in the world, and for centuries of sacrificing service wives and mothers have kept abreast of the time with eagerly adopted and carefully cherished standards. Way back in the stone age husbands dragged in the evening meal, which was roasted none too appetizingly over an open fire and eaten with a conspicuous absence of silverware and table linens.

Today inventive genius is centered on simplified housework based on cheerfulness in color, efficient appliances and improved cookery. As a result, controlled fuel responds to the touch of a button, electric refrigerators keep foods chilled below the spoiling point, and attractive table appointments make the simplest meals a delight.

All these have been experimented on by thousands before being generally adopted. But even when recognized we need skilights occasionally on how to use the improved methods at hand, and we want ideas to come from authorities experienced and sympathetic with the problems involved.

It is feminine joy of how to use modern methods to your very great advantage that Martha Lee and Mrs. Cross are giving these school lessons as a public-spirited service for our readers.

If your family purse is squeezed too tight to meet demands of marketing and menu planning, Mrs. Cross has suggestions in budgeting that have delighted thousands of women the country over. The problems of the fat and lean are to be covered by scientific talks on diets.

Finally, maybe you are one of the homemakers who just cannot get away from the kitchen and housework in time for recreation and normal family companionship. Mrs. Cross will demonstrate cuts in cookery and housework.

Yes, the Cooking School will make many contributions to raising the standards of housekeeping for the wife and mother. That is the joy found in their work by Martha Lee and Mrs. Cross, for they bring to their audiences the experience of thousands of housekeepers.

The Martha Lee Cooking School is thoroughly worth while, yet humor will abound in many anecdotes on housekeeping and there is much fun mixed in with the educational work in hand. There will be market baskets filled with fine foods for free distribution as gifts to fortunate ones, and cakes and other dainties prepared on the stage will be given away each afternoon.

Best of all, every woman present will have an opportunity to secure one of the splendid big gifts contributed to the success of the school by merchants.

We know that everyone will have a wonderful time and that the Cooking School will be a glorious success. In order that you will not miss even one session, plan your affairs now for next week so that you will be at every lecture. Be sure to bring your pencil and notebook and also some questions.

The questions brought out by the women in the audience are a very interesting feature of the school sessions, and Mrs. Cross looks forward with great interest to the problems in the minds of her listeners. There will be blanks provided at the Statler ballroom on which you may write your problems without signing your name.

These will be collected by the ushers and passed to Mrs. Cross on the platform. Be sure to make a note now of the days and hours—next week Tuesday through Friday, October 2, 3, 4 and 5, from 2 o'clock sharp until 4 o'clock at the Statler ballroom.

Come early—the doors will be open at 1 o'clock. There'll be one evening session on Friday at 7:30.

King Fond of Coffee

THE King of the Belgians is said to be the champion coffee drinker among European monarchs. His majesty, so it's reported, takes a cup of coffee before breakfast, one after breakfast, another cup with his noonday meal, one in the afternoon, still another after dinner, and the last cup during the evening.

What personability rests upon the royal coffee maker! But it is to be hoped that he is as canny in his selection of a brand of coffee to serve the king as hundreds of American wives are of the one they serve their husbands.

Millions of these women know that the making of a tempting beverage is not altogether a matter of boiling and brewing. Coffee must have flavor and aroma to be sure, but if the roasted bean does not possess these qualities, then no magic of the housewife can extract them.

But there is a certain fine old brand of coffee in which all the precious natural aromatic oils have been preserved in the roasting. The producers of this coffee experimented for over 80 years before they developed their present method of capturing the true fragrance and flavor of the bean. Even the packaging and sealing of this coffee is done in such a way that not a bit of the aroma is lost.

Thus, present day methods of "roasting the flavor in" provide housewives with a product which is even better than the coffee "that mother used to make."

Applesauce De Luxe

AN appetizing solution to our eternal problem of "what to have for dessert" is a can of marshmallow fluff on the emergency shelf. Smooth, richly delicious, marshmallow fluff ready to serve from the can, is both appetizing and healthful. And it can be used in so many ways to renew the appetite appeal of dessert leftovers—as well as in scores of other ways.

This marshmallow fluff comes to you packed in large or small cans by modern machinery, untouched by human hands. It is a healthful and dainty delicacy with a hundred uses, and is endorsed by more than 2000 New England housewives.

It is so wholesome that you can give your children all they want—not forgetting father and the rest of the family. Marshmallow fluff spreads as easily as butter and holds its smooth, rich texture. The tantalizing marshmallow flavor is truly delightful.

In the picture today we are showing you an easy-to-make apple sauce de luxe. For the average family the proportions for this are: Six tart apples, pared and sliced, and cooked with ¼ c. water and ¼ c. sugar until tender. Then pour into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle generously with nutmeg and cover with marshmallow fluff.

Place in a hot oven just long enough to brown the top and serve on square of hot gingerbread. Can you imagine anything more wholesome and delicious?

Drop me a line if you would like to have me send you other marshmallow recipes.

NEW FLOOD IMPERILS HURRICANE REFUGEES IN FLORIDA

HANDICAPS RED CROSS RELIEF

o poultry and live stock would be 38 per cent.

Four hundred bodies have been found at the hamlet of Pelican Bay and other inhabitants of the town are missing. Previous to the discovery of these bodies, Governor John Martin estimated the total loss of life in the State at 1500.

With the Kissimme river pouring water into Lake Okeechobee and the lake over its dykes, there is the menace of a new flood. This condition is handicapping Red Cross and other relief workers, who must use boats to traverse most of the distance between this city and the lake towns.

Meanwhile the work of reconstruction proceeds apace in the coast towns. Residents are arriving by the score to rebuild their homes. In addition there are hundreds of sightseers from all parts of the State. Florida is looking forward to the tourist season and is working at top speed to put her house in order.

15,000 Cases of Influenza Cause Alarm in Porto Rico

San Juan, Porto Rico, Sept. 24 (AP)—With 15,000 cases reported by health authorities and the Red Cross, an epidemic of influenza caused grave concern in Porto Rico today. In addition a thousand cases of pneumonia, malaria, measles and other diseases have also followed the tropical hurricane.

Hospital units arriving from New York will be broken up into small groups and scattered to places where the danger is greatest. Traveling conditions make the concentration of the sick difficult.

Health conditions were aggravated by numerous rainstorms. With only temporary shelter, many of the people faced added misery. Plans were rushed to unload the Havargent Bridge, which is bringing 20,000 blankets and 2000 beds. A train was loaded with lumber and ready to proceed inland, opening up the railroad for the first time since the disaster.

At a meeting of representatives of 76 of the island's 77 towns, 250,000 homeless were reported from 38 of the towns. Henry M. Baker, national disaster relief director of the Red Cross, said that the total was probably double this.

Have you all of your own teeth?

Unless you take preventive measures now, the day is coming when you will know, to your sorrow, that the true meaning of the phrase "artificial denture" is the extravagant price of self-neglect—false teeth. Here's the reason and the way to safeguard health against the coming of this day.

Teeth are only as healthy as the gums. And gums, undernourished and under-exercised as they are, soon surrender to dread diseases that ravage health and often destroy teeth. To prevent this, avail yourself of the best care that modern dentistry offers. Place yourself in the hands of your dentist at least twice a year. And brush your gums when you brush your teeth, every morning and night.

But for this purpose—use Forhan's for the Gums . . . the dentifrice specifically designed to firm gums and keep them sound and healthy, thus protecting them from the attack of disease.

Use Forhan's regularly. You'll be delighted with the way it makes your gums look and feel. In addition, you'll notice that it effectively and safely cleans teeth white and protects them from acids, which cause decay. Get a tube of Forhan's—today!

'JAP HICKMAN' COPIED LOEB IN MURDER

Honolulu, T. H., Sept. 24 (INS)—Seated in the office of the warden of Oahu prison while a threatening crowd gathered without, Yutaka Fukunaga, 22, Japanese confessed kidnaper and slayer of Gill Jamieson, 12, son of an official of the Honolulu Trust Company, with oriental stoicism today narrated details of his ghastly crime.

Unperturbed by the jeers of the mob, Fukunaga told authorities how he carried out his crime in a fashion which greatly resembled the slaying of little Marion Parker by Edward William Hickman.

"I studied the Hickman and Leopold cases," said the Japanese, "I didn't expect to make the mistakes they made. I planned to get $10,000 and then depart for San Francisco."

It was not his original plan to murder the Jamieson boy, he said, but after a desperate fight in which the boy almost overpowered him, he slugged the lad over the head knocking him unconscious and then strangled him.

HEAVY GUARD AT HOPPE TRIAL IN DEDHAM

tent which would prevent them voting for a verdict of guilty in a first-degree murder case.

The scenes of the murder trial is the same as that of the Sacco-Vanzetti court drama, and the questioning of persons entering the courtroom today together with the hearing of all but interested parties from the courtroom were reminiscent of that world-famous case.

Hoppe was handcuffed and surrounded by four deputy sheriffs as he was transferred from Dedham jail to the courtroom. In court after he was placed in the prisoner's cage and the handcuffs removed, his guards stood with their hands on the iron grill.

Norfolk county authorities took these precautions because Hoppe is considered the most desperate prisoner they have ever handled.

He made a break for freedom at Dedham jail September 9, which cost the lives of two trusties, and in August he was detected making preparations for flight. Hoppe escaped from Vermont state prison in July, 1926, and was recaptured, but while he was at large the Quincy bank cashier wife which he is charged was committed.

He is charged with slaying Patrolman Hollis during an attempted break in the Pill Brothers' hardware store, Hyde Park, Quincy early on the morning of October 4, 1927.

Deputies stood on the stairs leading up to the superior courtroom at the Dedham courthouse today to question all persons who tried to go up, and only those who had business connected with the trial were permitted to pass.

Hoppe was led into the courtroom by Deputy Sheriffs Edward Coldwell, William Lynch, Melvin Coulter and William Woodman. He was neatly dressed in a gray suit, bright red and gray tie, black oxfords and fancy socks. He appeared at ease and paid no attention to his extraordinarily strong guard.

The session opened with prayer, it being the beginning of the fall term, and immediately afterward the calling of prospective jurymen began. Judge Keating is presiding, with Assistant District Attorney William P. Kelley in charge of the prosecution and Attorney James Cassidy of Boston defending Hoppe.

PROBE 'POWER TRUST'S' CAMP FOR EDITORS

By M. L. RAMSAY

Washington, Sept. 24—Reported establishment of a summer resort for Georgia newspaper editors, by electric power interests pending "good will" relations, will be investigated by the Federal Trade Commission, it was learned today.

Information has reached the commission that this resort has been put at the editors' disposal through the Georgia Press Association, by the Georgia Railway and Power Company.

It is a mountain resort in northeast Georgia, on a tract described as the property of the power company near Tallulah Falls Dam. Cottages and a commodious community house, all equipped with electric lights and stoves and some furniture, were stated to be included.

CALLED "PRESSHAVEN"

As the story reached officials here, editors and their families have the right to spend vacations at Presshaven, as the tract is called, for a nominal sum.

The resort was dedicated August 17 last, five months after hearings began in the commission's propaganda investigation, and three months after the commission had learned from propagandists' testimony and records of their prodigious feats of "space-grabbing" in Georgia.

The dedication was stated to have taken place at a barbecue held by the power company at Presshaven for delegates to a convention of editors, with Preston Arkwright, president of the company, making the presentation address.

Linton K. Starr, director of public relations for the company and an honorary member of the State Press Association, was said to have made what was taken as a speech of acceptance on behalf of the editors.

EXPANSION PROMISED

An editors' association official and a professional engineer spoke.

Enlargement of the resort, and improvements, were understood to have been promised.

Close relations with editors are maintained by the Georgia power companies, it was learned today. In written records in one report, Claude Cope told of visiting 50 communities and "helping make clear to the editors various points in connection with the mergers and the Muscle Shoals bid."

Willard Cope, his brother and executive secretary of the Georgia bureau, told of spending $30,000 a year and destroying records showing how it was spent.

PLAN TO WIDEN NEWBURY ST.

The attorney-general's office, under a resolve passed by the Legislature, is required to consider the effect the lifting of restrictions will have on the State's interests as well as that of property owners. At the present time a set back of 20 feet is required on that thoroughfare.

MEXICAN BANDITS' RAID AIMED AGAINST MORROW

Mexico City, Sept. 24 (AP)—Universal today expressed the belief that an attack staged by 25 bandits on the village of Huitzilac, midway between Mexico City and Cuernavaca, was directed against Dwight W. Morrow, American ambassador.

Mr. Morrow, who was spending the week-end at his new residence in Cuernavaca, arrived in Huitzilac after the bandits had been driven off and proceeded to Mexico City, arriving there safely.

FLAPPER OF 20 HELD ON BOOKMAKING CHARGE

New Orleans, La., Sept. 24—Margaret Parlied, 20, blonde and pretty, was arrested here for bookmaking. Police found her seated at a table in an upper floor of a downtown office building surrounded by five telephones with charts on four race tracks before her and a pile of bet record sheets by her side. She told police she was the sole operator of the business.

SOMERVILLE BOY HURT BY TRACTOR AT CAMP

Richard Bryant, 20, of 11 Pennsylvania ave., Somerville, was thrown from the driver's seat beneath the wheels of a tractor at his father's camp in North Reading.

Two cleats of the wheels entered his body, fracturing a rib and severely lacerating his side. He was taken to Winchester Hospital, where his condition is not serious.

NORTH STATION HEARING IS SUSPENDED

Hearing by the Interstate Commerce Commission of a charge that the contract for the new North Station constituted a violation of the Clayton act lasted but a few minutes in federal district court here today.

Conrad W. Crooker, counsel for Julius C. Codman, moved for adjournment when it was disclosed that M. E. Easley, secretary and treasurer of the Dwight P. Robinson Co., erecting the station, is in Europe.

According to the complaint, stock owned by Homer F. Loring in the Robinson company was transferred to Easley two days before the contract with the Robinson company was ratified by the Boston & Maine Railroad executive committee.

Commissioners A. C. Hansen and J. C. Harraman, upheld Crooker's move and suspended the hearing. A date for resumption will be set later and in the meantime Crooker was ordered to furnish the commission with a list of the witnesses so they might be called.

Codman, a stockholder who has been opposing the new North Station terminal and arena project for months, filed this particular complaint last March, charging that the contract was made by the Boston & Maine Railroad through Homer F. Loring who, while president of the B. & M., was a substantial stockholder in the Robinson company. Homer Loring, the railroad and the Robinson firm are named in the complaint charging violation of the Clayton act.

MANAGER CALLS "BLUFF" ON CAFE "HOLDUP MAN"

A socio-comic holdup was staged today at Spalding's luncheon, Warren st., Roxbury, by a youth who had drunk not wisely but too well. He confronted the manager, Edward Grant, and demanded the contents of the cash register. His right hand was in his coat pocket as if clutching a gun and he called attention to it, saying:

"Look at this and don't be a sucker. Hand over the money."

Grant took a chance and ordered him out and he went, leaving the scene in a taxicab. He was described as about 24, five feet five, 125 pounds, light complexion, wearing a dark suit, light coat, light hat and tan shoes.

PHILADELPHIA GAMBLERS FIGHT DUEL TO DEATH

Philadelphia, Sept. 24 (AP)—Two men "shot it out" in a pistol duel to the death early today in a room in a small hotel during an argument over a gambling debt. Frank Pegano, also known as "Left Wrist," 34, was shot four times and died in a hospital. Harry W. Shaw, 32, sometimes known as "W. Brooks," who lived in the room where the shooting occurred, was shot when found with two bullet wounds in the abdomen. Both were known to the police, who characterized them as "small time racketeers."

500 CIGARETTE BUTTS IN "SNIPER'S" POCKETS

West Bridgewater, Sept. 24—"Capt." William John Joseph James Ryan, who is no relation to the Prince of Wales, but a ranking officer of the "snipers," was arrested here charged with being a vagrant.

W. J. J. J. Ryan claimed the title of captain, but police are sure he holds rank only in the "snipers." When arrested Ryan was "singing"—the popular term for retrieving cigarette butts. Being a successful exponent of the art he had some 500 of them in his coat pocket, according to jail attendants. Police Chief Laughton, believing there are more, may demand a recount, contents being in vogue. He will face Brockton district court.

Tiger Payne Signs to Battle Joe Monte Here Oct. 1

PUNCHERS CLASH AT ARENA

Col. Bob McKirdy Announces Show for Next Monday Night; Plans Popular Prices

By JACK CONWAY

TIGER PAYNE, Australian heavyweight champion, has been signed to meet Joe Monte of Brockton in a ten-round bout at an Arena A. C. show a week from tonight.

Payne, the latest colored sensation, and Monte have already engaged in ten clever battles in New York. The first contest was staged at Madison Square Garden under the direction of Tex Richard. In the fifth round, during a wild exchanges of blows, Payne went to the canvas in a heap and was awarded the battle on a foul. There was a demand for a return match and it was held at the Queensboro Stadium, one of New York's big outdoor arenas. Once more Payne and Monte swapped blows with honors being even at the end of ten rounds.

Jack Conway

Payne is said to be the hardest hitting colored boxer since the days of Sam Langford. Like Langford, Payne started as a lightweight. He won the lightweight, welterweight, middleweight and heavyweight championships of Australia one after another.

Johnny Squires, who recently went to pieces with Johnny Risko at Detroit, was stopped in a round by Payne. Squires, Billy Williams faded out of the picture in four rounds.

Max Garnick, who fought a draw with Tom Heeney, and Eng Waddy, who outmoved Heeney in 15 rounds, were outfought by Payne.

Since coming to this country, Payne has knocked out George Green of Philadelphia in four rounds and Gunnar Monte Tiger. The Tiger is managed by Jack Lyons, who says his new protege will win the world's light heavyweight and heavyweight titles. Payne, who Langford when at his best, only scaled 168 pounds, but does not experience any trouble in thrashing the big fellows stiff.

COL. BOB McKIRDY announces that he will operate every Monday night at the Arena during the fall, winter and spring. He announced that the price of tickets will be from 50 cents to $3.

The decision to run monthly fight shows is understood to be part of the Arena Club's plan to combat opposition in the form of a golf course.

The Arena has a seating capacity of 10,000 and standing room for many. The wage differences and Mike Gill, who operates the Arena, announced that the Arena has not lost at least $50,000 a year since it started in Tom Goodwin, Mahony interests, the Arena is now running to the tune of $100,000 a year, according to a Boston promoter.

The Colonel says Richard's plan is to take other cities, such as New York, Brooklyn and those towns in the Empire State. New York, after it robbed, will not be used as a base for the shows. Goodwin, Mahony, Mike Gill and Dennis Sullivan, Boston boxing promoter, could hope to get for them kind of attractions in Boston could be put on.

There is much truth in McKirdy's remarks. New York will still continue to get the best boxing matches as the big money is there.

Boston will have to be satisfied with good local bouts and second class national attractions.

THERE will not be any pro boxing in Boston this week.

JONES PICKS ARMY TEAM FOR B. U. GAME

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 24—The tentative lineup of the Army team for its opening game with Boston University next Saturday was announced by Capt. Biff Jones, head coach here, today after the close of practice.

Opposing fans do not intend taking any chances on the scrappy Boston team has steadily improved and they were right.

The lineup: Merriman, right end; Perry, right tackle; Humber, right guard; Hall, center; Hammack, left guard; Sprague, captain, left tackle; Malloy, left end; Nave, quarterback; Allan, right halfback; Murrell, fullback; Cagle, left halfback.

Substitutes: Buck, Perry, Heidt, Hammack and Sprague are veterans of last year's team, which had a very successful season. In the backfield all except Allan played last year. Cagle and Murrell having been partners everywhere, while Nave, who replaced Brosan was noted for his cautiousness and good judgment as quarterback in receiving plays.

Humber, Malloy and Messinger all played on last year's plebe team. As yet they are inexperienced and Biff Jones is deeply concerned as to how they will work under the stress of real game.

Jones emphasized that the one weak point in passing the ball was fumbling when men who are receiving the ball are on the run. He will devote much time to perfecting fumble drilling and this is expected today.

Character Shapes Life, Says Tunney

By GENE TUNNEY

Retired Undefeated World's Heavyweight Champion

IN building or shaping a life in any direction, one thing is fundamental—and that one thing is character.

Reputation is what people think we are; character is what we are. Reputation is like a meteor which flashes brilliantly in the sky and then leaves it darker than ever.

Character is the everlasting sun which shines on the glory of day, while it is hidden by clouds or gives it unhindered healing.

Nothing in the world can take the place of character—social position, political prestige, financial power or the heroine of the crowd. It is the one part of man's makeup that constantly lives with him. It is more insistent than adhesive tape.

PEOPLE may describe us as generous, truthful, square, considerate and manly—you yourself are the only one who can prove, or disprove their appraisal.

Character is the only persistent part of a man's life which never deserts him. Sickness, calibsm, reverses, defeat, all may come, but his character remains his own.

You may ask what this has to do with a boxer's career and I answer—everything. Every form and shade of athletics is open to suspicion—baseball, football, tennis, hockey, boxing. The weights of all sports are the demands on the character of its devotees. Let one man throw a game, make a misdeliver, one ball player fail to touch a ball that comes his way, or one boxer take a dive, and immediately the word sport is imperiled and withered under the scathing criticism of the public press.

A BOXER deals with managers, promoters, sport writers, contestants with an intimacy that either can make or mar his contracts or creates enmities that extend far beyond the days of his activity in the ring. To leave it said of a boxer that he is a square shooter, that he never speaks with a double meaning, that his word is 100 per cent reliable, and that he is always ready to meet his rival on a fair basis, is a reputation every real man covets.

My career as a boxer is closed. I leave it trusting that I have the confidence, esteem and good will of every man it has been my privilege to meet and I sincerely hope that the promoters, managers, sports writers and others with whom I have been on intimate terms will say of me, not that I was a great boxer, but that my word was as good as my note. This, after all, would be the highest tribute they could pay me.

HARD WEEK HERE FOR TUFTS ELEVEN

Coach Arthur Sampson at Tufts has decided that this will be a tough week for his first squad of 33. There will be a session of scrimmage each day in which every man will participate.

A feature of the Tufts attack this year will be its forward passing offense and these workouts will give an opportunity to study its power and deception.

Kennedy is throwing the greater number of passes this year instead of Ellis, and Arianson and Phillips are on the receiving end of the majority of the heaves.

Homer Ruggerio, a rugged junior, has improved greatly in the last few workouts and may be expected on the first team soon. Littleton and Medcalf, sophomores, are giving Curit and Butters a bitter battle for the tackle berth, but the experience of the latter pair is aiding them to stay on team A.

Husky Phillips, who seems slated to occupy the fullback position, has only taken part in one or two sessions because of a severe cold. Appleton and Ingalls, both veterans, have been taking his place, but there is a great loss of power when he is absent from the team A lineup.

Many coaches, both high school and college, interested in the Tufts system, have been critical spectators at the workouts to date. Joe McKenney, B. C. coach, was one of the more prominent visitors.

SCHOOL GAMES SHOW STRONG GRID TEAMS

By DICK McSWEENEY

All of the schoolboy teams which were picked to win their games Saturday did so, with the exception of Everett, which played a scoreless tie with St. Peter's of Worcester.

The Cambridge Latin-Salem game was easily the best contest. Although the Cambridge boys were outweighed, they fought hard and showed a lot of stuff. Anderson's kicking and McManon's line plunging was too much for Coach McDonald's team.

Harlow and Perry did their best for Cambridge, but they could not gain consistently through the line.

EVERETT GOT SURPRISE

The Everett-St. Peter's game was a surprise for Coach Gildea's club. Everett was expected to have an easy time of it, but they had to fight to keep the Worcester team from their goal line. Baldwin and Harkins of Everett look good.

Sherry and Donaher of Worcester are another fast pair.

Somerville began its season very well. Petersen, the Somerville fullback, gained at will through the Chelsea line and played a great game, as did Murphy, his running mate, who made long gains off tackle.

O'Connor and Stultz of Malden, who scored touchdowns against Roseham, look like big assets to Coach Batchelder's Blue and Gold club for the season.

Wilbur and Spellman gained most of the Medford yardage against New Bedford Vocational.

TROSKY IS THERE

Albert Trosky, Brockton's substitute quarterback, looks like all-scholastic material. He annexed five touchdowns on long runs through the Whitman line. Brockton is going to be without the services of Leary, regular quarterback, who had his collarbone broken early in the game.

Fumbles lost the game for the Beverly team, which was defeated, 14—0, by Nashua. Steve Patten's team outrushed their opponent, but failed to hold the ball tight when in their own territory. Riscardurso and Deegan scored touchdowns for Nashua.

Melrose showed a lot of power while beating Lexington. Kinney and Keating, fleet backs, broke through the line at will.

Somerville high school has an open date on Nov. 17 and would like to play some strong high school eleven. Maurice Duchin, the Somerville manager, wants to get in touch with any manager whose team is not playing on that date.

Bill Sullivan, the Peabody coach, has but two veterans this year. They are Capt. Donnelly and McCarthy, both tackles. Now, Quarter has been found yet and Coach Sullivan must develop a forward passer. The material is very green and light but there is plenty of spirit in the Peabody squad.

Hallonen looks like good guard material, and Prendible is a fast end.

The best of the backfield candidates seem to be the group composed of McGregor, Woods, Anderson, Newall, Henry, Comarik, and Kelly.

Peabody high school is facing some strong teams this season. Take a look at its schedule. Sept. 29, Woburn; Oct. 6, Lynn Classical at Lynn; Oct. 12, Beverly at Beverly; Oct. 20, Lawrence; Oct. 27, Cambridge Latin; Nov. 3, Salem; Nov. 10, Revere; Nov. 17, Lynn English; Nov. 29, Haverhill at Haverhill.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

As the national championships are to the stars of this country, so are the annual get-together days at the Albemarle Golf Club to the Newspapermen's Golf Association.

The writers will convene at Albemarle today and the biggest attendance of the season is expected. Along with the tournament, the members will have their first opportunity of welcoming Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Forsyth, who have been and still are, mainly responsible for the success of the organization.

Mrs. Isobel Ward Rice came through for the second time to win the Rhode Island State championship. Mrs. Rice annexed the title a year ago at the Agawam Hunt Club and this season successfully defended by defeating Miss Virginia Kenworthy 3 and 2. Miss Kenworthy went through the semifinal round by winning over her mother, Mrs. Harry E. Kenworthy.

One of the wildest scenes ever enacted on a golf course was the scrambling of the contestants in the Inter-Club match at the Unicorn Country Club to round up their opponents for the morning round.

As wild as was the seek for opponents, it could not compare with the battling at the conclusion of the matches to see who won and by how much. Joe Bailey of the Penn A. C. had a system for compiling the results, otherwise it would have been a no decision affair.

Although the Bay State was represented by practically a kid team in the Tri State matches in New Haven, they failed to score in only seven matches during the day. Perley Crosby and Eddie Murphy lost both of the single matches, while Joe Lynch, E. S. Childs and Johnny Merwin were the only other losers.

The match between Joe Lynch of Blue Hill and Bob Grant of Hartford, Conn., brought together two of the most promising youngsters in New England. Grant is the outstanding young man of the Nutmeg State, while Joe Lynch stands head and shoulder over all the kids in the Bay State. Grant nosed out a one up win off George Capen's protege.

George Aulbach started defending his New England Professional Golfers' Association title this morning at the Rhode Island Country Club. George had a great battle last season at Commonwealth in winning this crown, for Charlie MacAndrews and Louis Meyers were right on his heels all the way.

The Penn A. C. brought a real golfer to the Unicorn Country Club in J. W. Kindt. Kindt is unknown in this vicinity, but he showed himself to be a topnotcher last Saturday. Woodie Platt predicts that Kindt will soon receive country wide recognition.

Tom Ashley walked himself into a fine—and incidently thankless—job when he assumed charge of the Inter Club matches. Tom is captain of the B. A. A. team, but he was so busy trying to satisfy everyone and get things running smoothly that he did not have a chance to even take a practice swing.

Morris Rosenthal must have improved his game during his visit to Europe last spring for he came through with a hole in one at Kernwood Country Club recently. He sprayed a mashie shot from the 9th tee into the cup for an ace and now proclaims himself champion of the Rosenthal family but Mrs. Rosenthal is disputing his claim.

Chet Rich announces that the open tournament payeress will find the Wollaston Country Club course much to their liking this week. The Wollaston open should draw a record number of competitors, under proper weather conditions. Try and get on that second green in two.

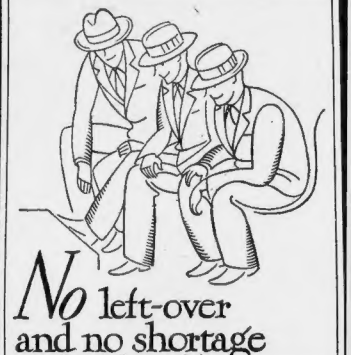
Chicago, Ill., Sept. 24—Thomas Doyle purchased Jean Seib and Riot from John Connors, owner of the Derby Stable, also the contract of Jockey L. Connors.



No left-over and no shortage in fitted arch-support

It is almost worse to get too much or too little arch support than to have none at all when you need it. For arches differ as much as feet do and suffer from careless fitting.

At Coward you can get just enough arch support...never a fraction too much or too little. You can be fitted with high support, or low or medium. For since there are three types of arches, Coward, of course, has designed three types of arch support shoes. All three mean the highest type of foot comfort.

Pere Marquette 11 Crushes Okos, 27-0

The Pere Marquette K. of C. football eleven of South Boston opened the season at the C. J. Lee playground, M st., City Point, downing the Okos of Brockton, 27 to 0.

The Pere Marquettes made four touchdowns. Johnson made two, one in the first quarter and another in the third period. Wentworth also made a touchdown in the first period.

The feature was a 45-yard run for a touchdown by Paul Kilfredge in the fourth quarter. He was aided by effective interference and ran through a broken field.

Kilfredge kicked a goal on Wentworth's touchdown, and Cy did the honors on Paul's touchdown. An extra point after touchdown was made subsequent to Johnson's second touchdown on a forward pass, Wise to Billy O'Leary.

RELATIVE OF WANER BROS. MOVES UP IN LEAGUES

Salisbury, N. C., Sept. 24—The Salisbury Colonels sold Outfielder Earl Johnson to Dallas of the Texas League.

The player, who will report to the Steers next spring, is a relative of Paul and Lloyd Waner, stars of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

JOHN HARVEY SHATTERS HOME CLUB RECORD

John Harvey, greenskeeper at the Paul Revere Golf Club in Lexington, by making the nine holes in 34, broke the par record for the course one stroke under par—35.

He would have done even better but fell down on the sixth hole, with a 6. His card: 4 3 4 4 4 5 3 3 5—34.

Hot Springs, Va., Sept. 24 (INS)—Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. Most formidable among the Provi[illegible] opponents is Mrs. Marion Beebe Tyson of Kansas City, Mo., who won the championship over Miss Caddy Woodward of Greenwich, R. I., last autumn. Mrs. Marion Orcutt of New York is also a contender for the honor, as is Miss Leonore S. Cohen of Los Angeles, but the former is considered the best bet to bring her home as the 1928 champion golfer. Miss Collett is favorite as Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser in the 1927 title play, and Bobby Jones before Mrs. Tyson, who was then Miss Marion Beebe of Providence.

Will Any Man Love Girl With a Past?

CHAPTER 7

JOAN was beginning to understand. The sick man had a job driving a milk truck—at least he thought it was a milk truck, but it was a truck full of whiskey. And because his tooth hurt him so much he asked Bill to drive for him, and the federal authorities wouldn't believe Bill didn't know it was whiskey . . . and they took him away . . . and put him in jail . . .

"Oh, but they'll let him go—the people that hired him will tell that Bill didn't know. They wouldn't be mean enough to let an innocent man suffer—"

The sick man whom they called Milt, shook his head gloomily. "Those people will be busy saving their own skins. Besides, they didn't hire that kid, they hired me, see?"

"Milt," Eunice cried in a high voice—"Did you know it wasn't milk? If I thought you did—oh, my God—"

Milt groaned and clutched his jaw in pain. "Now, I mix my own alcohol. Oh, well—I can stand it I guess—it don't matter. The babies all love their Daddy. Come, Come to Daddy, Rosalie . . . Ruby."

Joan stood bewildered, holding tight to Mrs. Martin's little red head. Bill's mother was the only one who was real, the others were just people out of a nightmare, a terrible, mixed up nightmare . . .

"What are we going to do?" she kept repeating dully. "We've got to do something—"

"He wouldn't have been caught." Milt broke in harshly.

Joan blanched. Her hand flew to her throat nervously. It was true—it was her own fault Bill was in jail. He was coming to her, fast as the wind.

Suddenly Milt turned to Joan. "Say, I would you come to know about all this, eh?" He was trying to finish the run, and see—ooh!" After 10 o'clock at night, eh? Pretty late—"

"Milt!" Eunice cried sharply. "It's Miss Van Fleet's niece I tell you! Are you crazy, Milt? Talking like that to—to—married to Joan, Miss Van Fleet's niece. You mustn't mind Milt, Joan . . . he's really very sick and—and he's in pain, and we've got to help him. You must excuse him. And to excuse the kitchen, too. I didn't get around to cleaning it this week, with Mama laid up, too, and all—"

"Oh, but he's quite right," Joan said in her clear, honest voice. "He was coming to see me—that's how I knew something had happened."

They all stared at her. To think of Bill coming with Miss Van Fleet's niece! Well! Eunice said, feebly "To—that Van Fleet's . . . Well!"

Now the mask was talking again.

BRIDE GIVES UP HUSBAND TO HUB POLICE

Declaring her husband induced her to attempt a crime on her wedding day, for which she was arrested, and then left her to her fate, an angry wife today caused the arrest of a Worchester man at the bride's insertion of Washington and Summer sts.

On her assertion that he is wanted in Springfield on a check charge, he was held under $1000 bail by Bernard J. Kandl, took Edward J. Dwyer, of 6 Pickwood rd., Worcester, to the station.

Dwyer was taken to police headquarters, fingerprinted and photographed and held as a suspicious person, pending response to inquiries sent to Springfield and other cities.

Dwyer and his wife, who was born Greek, are not sure. They were married in Boston and that he gave her $1 and sent her into a hotel in Springfield to obtain it.

While he was questioned and held for the police by the bride, she told reporters proudly that she had not found his check worthless. Arraigned in court, she told the judge she loved Dwyer and was "glad he got freedom on a promise to find her husband and live happily."

Returned to Boston with a bridal gown and made an optimistic remark that Summer Weather was over and he had to go back to work, he appeared in appearance at the police station.

It was said that Dwyer was married in April, 1927, to Miss Mary Hollis, 20, of Worcester, and that he met his bride with Miss Grace Fields.

LYNN JUDGE PEELS HIS ROLL FOR NEEDY MAN

George H. Tobey went out of Lynn court today possessed of a new courage, abiding faith in the police and judiciary and several new bills of currency of the right hand trousers pocket roll of Judge Ralph W. Reeve.

He left behind in the courtroom the receding waves of pity that had moved Judge Reeve to wipe off a charge of vagrancy and ...ark for his right hand pocket in one move.

Tobey, who is deaf and partly crippled, has had a run of hard luck, submitting in hope of his job in Brockton and preaching in Lynn on Saturday in search of another post.

He had money enough for lodging Saturday night, but when more money was not forthcoming next night the landlady turned him out of her Lynn house.

Tired, disheartened, hungry and with the chill winds blowing through his thin garments Tobey limped through the streets into Motorcycle Officer James Parrott, sensing something wrong, stopped and questioned him.

The officer took Tobey to a restaurant and provided a substantial meal. Then he took the wanderer to police headquarters, where, because a city ordinance required a charge before a person can be accommodated in the station, he was booked for vagrancy.

In court Officer Barnett explained the circumstances and then Tobey told his run of hard luck and told of his child, and Judge Reeve reached for his pocket, peeled off several bills and passed the sorry looking man luck.

Correct Manners

BY MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN.

I. Is it true that it is proper for the bride-to-be to acknowledge the wedding gifts before her marriage, writing a personal note and using her maiden name.

B. Is it proper to acknowledge the gifts after her marriage, using Mr. and Mrs. on an engraved card or notes.

J. P. "A." Is correct how should a man announce gifts from relatives or friends to the prospective bride-to-be?

L. It is correct, how soon after her marriage should she acknowledge gifts?

One reason we come to you is that a bride-to-be has complained that she is receiving cards announcing the birth of babies bearing her own maiden name, and although she will be married within a few weeks.

BRIDE-TO-BE.

A. Is correct. The bride-to-be is correct in saying that gifts received after she has received a wedding present, writes a note of thanks. All of these notes should be written before the bride-to-be leaves on her honeymoon. She signs her maiden name, since at this time, she is her name.

B. The girl who sends "ready-made" cards to announce the event of her marriage is not following the rules of etiquette. It is considered crude and incorrect by them.

J. P. "A." The bride-to-be acknowledges all gifts, even if present are sent to her after she writes the notes to the relations and friends of the groom.

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

In sending out announcements for evening would it be all right to have the names on both envelopes instead of writing them?

NO. It is proper to the names and address on formal announcements. The kind would be best now. Just have the names, and by all means, write the names on both envelopes.

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

THIS depends on the [illegible] of the room. If the room is small and [illegible] is sufficient, it is usually not necessary to have any light but the candle [illegible].

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

Is it proper for a teacher to thank a pupil for a gift received?

MICKEY.

YES. It is, indeed, very polite for her not to thank for the thoughtfulness.

DON'T ACCEPT IT

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

Will Mrs. Keith inform us whether it is proper for a young lady to receive presents from her lady friend or entertainment purposes?

ETHEL AND DORIS.

NO. It is not proper.

Once-Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

OFTEN when you meet married couples you wonder what the man or the woman saw in his or her partner which was attractive.

While you are thinking along this line, these same people may be having the same thoughts about you and the person you have selected as a mate.

You may be passably good looking, intelligent and have a good income.

But you may have some pretty disagreeable traits, not easy to live with day in and day out, because few people are free from them.

So why consider yourself superior to the majority?

What have you done that is exceptional?

If you look about you can find many persons with fewer opportunities than you have had, yet they are your superiors.

Why take so much on your judgment of those whom you meet?

From what basis do you figure that because you do not see attractive feature about persons they don't exist?

Fairness, thoughtfulness, kindness, sympathy, may exist most extensively in the person who is least attractive physically.

TEACH RESPONSIBILITY

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

MANY youngsters are fortunate enough to acquire a dog or a kitten, but even in such cases I wonder if the parents realize the very great opportunity which lies therein for character training. Apart from the joy of companionship which a child experiences in owning a pet, this ownership can impart many a lesson in behavior toward human beings and what is expected of the child in his attitude and deeds toward others.

The biggest one seems to me to be the fact that we must love others in our life but that love also carries with it the obligation and privilege of caring for the thing we love, serving it and watching over it with a continual attitude of tenderness and willingness to share and sacrifice. When a child possess a dog or a cat of his very own, love comes to be a passive emotion and flowers into full bloom in an expressed affection which protects that animal, feels it and, in return, enjoys its loyalty and devotion.

Children love to imitate their animal friends. Have the child look at his pet and compare him with other animals you may see on the street. Is he a small or large dog or cat? What color are his eyes? Examine his feet. Has the dog sharp claws like the cat? Why not? Why are he's teeth so white and clean? The information a child can acquire daily from the source of pets is astounding and intensely interesting to him.

Perhaps we seldom think of pets in this light because we take our knowledge of them so thoroughly for granted, but remember that your child has both here much a short time. He has been so little, heard so little, experienced so little, as compared with you.

For a wee baby, all in the cradle, a canary bird is an excellent pet. Hang the cage where he can see the bird. Its color, motion and song will attract him. Even while the child is still a baby impress upon him that the bird expresses his happiness, his gratitude for food, water and care in gay songs. When the child is old enough let him take the responsibility of the bird as far as he is able, feeding him, preparing his bath, etc.

Dogs are my favorites as pets for children. The child who possesses a puppy must needs share with it his food, his attention, his care, his playtimes and so on, by definite. He learns to GIVE as an evidence of love. In telling him he is in the position of a parent to the animal, the child gets the import of the mother and father love which strives, sacrifices, and thinks always for the welfare of the little lives in their care. It makes for greater family unity, a clearer understanding of the family unity, a clearer understanding of the family relationships which he sees daily.

It is needless to say that gentleness MUST be the first point you make in connection with any pets your child may have. The manner in which many children are allowed to assail animals about is nothing short of criminal, and if you do not care to take the time to instruct your child how to be kind and considerate of his animal companion it is far better that he should never have one. Impress upon the child that he owns the animal, he is responsible for its care and comfort and that always and unfailingly he must be gentle and loving toward it.

Rabs Denny, of the Denny & Morey store in this city, may clean up a fortune if a device which he has perfected finds general favor—and it bids fair to become almost universally demanded. Mr. Denny has been in the clothing business for years. He has made the business a close study and from careful observation and personal experience he has evolved this little contrivance. Simple and inexpensive to manufacture, he believes he will be able to make enough to supply the demand next summer.

The device consists of two small tapes, each with a brass tape at one end. At this end are small clasps designed to attach to shirt and undies. The single ends hang to within one inch of the bottom of either pants leg. The wearer may thus, with slight effort, imperceptible to the casual observer, adjust those garments which usually have a tendency to ride the belt or gather around the neck.

GEN. MOTORS' SPLITUP SEEN IN OFFING

By FRANK H. MELSON

Headline over this column today is not new. It appeared over this column Sept. 14. The news appeared while it was still valuable, more than a week before the confirmatory statement by President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors. Headline published Saturday on another newspaper's financial page will give you the general idea: Stone Predicts Boom for Motors Security Owners; Intimates Directors will Split Up Stock and Raise Regular Dividend at November Meeting."

Not alone to electric refrigeration applied Insull statement of Vice-President Charles F. Weed of the First National Bank of Boston, speaking of possibilities in the field of distribution in New England. Mr. Weed stated while this section comprises only 2 per cent of country's area and only 7 per cent of its population, New Englanders have $715 per capita savings compared with $240 for remainder of country, and $1567 per capita income as compared with $787 for rest of country.

Sir Henry Thornton, head of the State railroads of Canada, former American railroad man, has been called to England, Mr. Henry, well known as a speaker in Boston, is a frequent visitor to the financial pages of the Boston Evening American. He was formerly at the head of the Long Island railroad. He went to England about three years ago to introduce American ideas into the Great Eastern Railroad. His innovations were strongly opposed and six years ago he went to Canada. He took over the management of the State railroads and reduced their earnings by $48,000,000 a year.

Sir Henry Thornton

Laurence R. Wilder

This proof of efficiency has greatly impressed the managers of the British railroads, and Mr. Thornton now sent for Sir Henry in their hour of need. The revenues of British railroads have been increasing rapidly and several dividends have been passed. The managers are now more teachable than they were fifteen years ago, and they have lost their prejudices against American methods.

Herbert N. Casson, writing about Sir Henry, says: "Mr. Thornton has also been announced that British bankers will adopt to a certain degree the methods of the Federal Reserve Plan, which have proved so successful in the United States. They will lend money on bills drawn by salaried and professional men and women. This has never been done before in Great Britain."

I think Mr. Casson might have added it has never been done in America either. The Morris Plan operates on a different principle. So me at the Hotel Touraine by one of the very genial Morris brothers a long time ago. The Morris plan, of course, does not lend money without security.

President Charles C. Small of American Ice Co., in answer to question as to whether electric refrigeration is having any adverse effect on his business, declares the very opposite has happened. He says: "The small electric refrigerator has been pushed vigorously. Millions of dollars were spent in advertising. Several standard makes have been widely distributed, but during all this time the large ice consumption has been enjoying real prosperity. Electric and gas refrigeration from our standpoint was the best thing that ever came into competition. It put us on our mettle and we began for the first time to realize the great possibilities of the business." Expensive advertising of electric refrigeration, he states, drew attention to hygienic and scientific possibilities of refrigeration and for every customer American Ice Co. lost it gained four or five new ones.

Stock Market Is Buzz-Saw; Air Shares to Net Riches

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Sept. 24—No matter how distrustful one may be of the sensational outgivings, it would be foolhardy to attempt to look into the present stock market. It has proved full of opportunity for darting in and out at a profit. And there is no telling how much longer the giant bulls may maintain control.

It is unlikely that the Federal Reserve authorities will take any unnecessarily harsh steps to kill cheerfulness between now and presidential election Tuesday, should the voting please Hoover. The market might easily be whooped up to still greater heights.

On the other hand, were the biggest bulls for any reason to decide to unload, the market could drop precipitately. The public usually are willing to follow the market, either up or down. Unquestionably, the public have bought very extensively during the latest rise, which has carried average quotations to a new peak. If quotations were to collapse, the public undoubtedly would sell hurriedly and freely.

That the market will some day reverse its course is beyond all question.

October 1 dividend and interest payments are always very large. This year they will be larger than ever before. The cumulative theorem that Wall Street will encounter a spasm of still dearer money, especially call money. Whether this will have more than mild and passing effect on speculative stocks is open to question.

My own guess is that the highest money rates of the year will be experienced next month and that thereafter there will be some decline rather than the further rise generally predicted.

Wall Street may become distinctly more air-minded. It is convinced that flying will increase more in the next two years than it has done in the last 20. Very influential financiers and financial houses that have heretofore held aloof are now becoming actively interested in getting into the game.

A titanic struggle for supremacy in aircraft building will be witnessed. The history of radio probably will be repeated: scores of plants will be started up, most of them will prove poor for profit, production will be grossly overdone, the weaker ventures will go to the wall and a few strong ones will survive. Whether the kingpins ultimately will prove to be General Motors or Ford or one or two of the strictly aircraft companies already operating, only the future can tell. If one could foretell he could, by the investment of only a moderate sum, become independently wealthy. Watch developments closely.

That the Pacific will one day pass the Atlantic in activity is confidently prophesied. Vast expansion of Pacific commerce is actively under way—so active that some the news that the Dollar Steamship people are building two new $7,000,000 ships for the Pacific trade. The next big expansion will come when China composes her internal difficulties and settles down earnestly to business.

Subjects interested in furthering Pacific commerce have been holding the Sixth Annual Convention of the Pacific Foreign Trade Council at Los Angeles. Among those taking part have been Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles, Commissioner Julius Barnes, Robert Dollar, of San Francisco; J. A. H. Kemp of Los Angeles; E. P. Riesler, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Henry F. Grady, Dean of Commerce at California University; Judge Macdonald, chief of the Court of Appeals of Canada, influential speakers all the banquet, as well as other influential representatives from the Pacific Coast, Canada and Hawaii. The Dollar people have built in the United States is now plying between Seattle and the Pacific Coast. If you want an ideal holiday trip, go to Honolulu. It is really "different."

The view voiced in this column that bumper crops at low prices are more profitable to farmers than extremely light crops at very high prices is indorsed by the Wall Street Journal in the light of the course of a long editorial:

"It is Forbes' policy to accept the deduction that bumper crops, even at low prices, confer while benefits, although the farmer may be embarrassed by his surplus. Short crops at high prices are something the farmer dislikes always with the presumption that his own crop is a good one. The reasoning is bad because the farmer's wealth would, if a short crop meant that all farmers had to sell at high prices, be available at twice the price of previous crops, the wisdom of combination to restrict production would be largely proved. But that is exactly what happens when the crop is short."

It's a dry enough campaign, far.

GRAIN MEN FOR 'SOUND' FARM AID PLAN

Grain dealers, an important group of farm products middlemen, would welcome and endorse any sound plan to increase farm values if it were not based on the "fallacy of stabilization," and they hope that such relief may come from the current political agitation, President C. D. Sturtevant of Omaha told members of the Grain Dealers National Association here today in 22nd annual convention. The sessions are being held at the Statler Hotel.

The grain dealers, Sturtevant said, are interested in realizing higher values for grain and their interest is second only to that of the grain farmers themselves.

"It seems almost unnecessary," he said, "to repeat that a middleman can make greater profits when handling high-priced rather than low-priced commodities, and that the grain trade would be more prosperous if higher prices prevailed.

"We would indorse any sound plan that would permanently increase farm values; any plan that would not be based on the fallacy of stabilization—in this serious meaning of the word—or unnecessary, or manipulation—through governmental aid. No such plan has been presented."

Sturtevant expressed the opinion that encouragement along such a line may come from the plan of Robert S. Brookings, which is now before the Senate committee on agriculture. This plan would establish farm operation through large cooperatives, Sturtevant stated, and Brookings' proposal deserves earnest consideration by the association.

"If the farming industry," said Sturtevant, "demands equality with other industries, it should adopt the successful methods of these other industries and eliminate unprofitable plants from production, conserve man power and reduce costs according to accepted methods, and should not demand that government aid be granted to permit inefficient plants to remain in operation."

GOOD BUSINESS IS FORECAST

Good business is forecast at Harvard.

Harvard Economic Society in its current weekly letter contains the following opinion regarding the present business outlook:

"The prospect is for a good volume of autumn business, but no active holiday trade, but it is clear that business no longer can expect the stimulus of abnormally easy money which has contributed so much to the construction program and the development of securities selling in recent years.

"Active business and firm money are characteristic of the prosperity phase of the business cycle. There is one important difference, however, between the present situation and that which existed in prosperous years of earlier business cycles, when a condition of credit tension was developing which finally resulted in disaster.

"Commercial credits are now liquid, and demands for accommodation moderate.

"Speculative excesses when our good stock boom began were reduced, and not business unsoundness, account for the present

300 CRIPPLED CHILDREN TO SEE THURSTON

Three hundred crippled and deformed children who are battling life's handicaps at Massachusetts Hospital school will be guests of the Boston Evening American next Thursday at a special performance in which Howard Thurston, the world famous magician and his charming daughter, Jane, will be the entertainers. Because one of the children's deformities and the difficulty in moving them the performance will be given in the recreation hall of the institution at Canton. The master magician will not only display his tricks and illusions from the stage, but will also pass among the boys and girls, producing rabbits, money and a goose from there, to the amazement of the kiddies.

Howard Thurston

Mr. Thurston will also delight the children by locating candy and other things dear to the hearts of youngsters from impossible places, such as the crutches and braces they use in getting about. It's going to be a big afternoon for in addition to this wonderful institution, presided over by Dr. John Fish.

In his Boston engagement, which opens at the Colonial Theater tonight, Mr. Thurston is assisted by his daughter, Jane. She will sing and dance for the children at next Thursday's performance.

During the present engagement, the so-called "Indian rope trick" will be presented for the first time or a fully lighted stage. This is the most talked of feat in the world of magic. The magician's assistant, Mohamet Bey, climbs a rope, hanging apparently unsupported, and vanishes into space.

The program includes a sensational illusion in which an automobile with several girl passengers is flicked from sight on a fully lighted stage, "sawing a woman in half," the "floating crystal" and a series of mystifying "spiritualistic stunts."

SCOLLAY FILM SHOWS SCENES OF GANGLAND

In "State Street Sadie," the new film at the Scollay, Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy get mixed up with the gangsters all over again. It's an underworld thriller of course, with machine guns spatting, revolvers roaring and the entire police force dashing furiously to the rescue. The hero goes out to avenge his brother's honor, and the heroine defies extreme peril to convict the scar-faced rough ruffian. It is exciting, if not exactly intellectual entertainment, and the audience assimilates it thrill by thrill, until the lights go up and the vaudeville comes on. The vaudeville, by the way, is Kitty Doner, the best of the male impersonators, and one of the smartest girls on the variety stage today.

Conrad Nagel

Getting back to the underworld, the best picture seems to resemble "Tenderloin." It "talks" in places, just like its predecessor, and the bad boys appear to struggle just as hard. In one episode Mr. Nagel "covers" the villain with a gun, but he makes the mistake to keep his back turned toward an open door, thus leaving the way clear for another thug to come in and "jump" him. Any good old-fashioned Wild West fanny would do better than that.

Real gangsters might now be highly worried up over "State Street Sadie," but the audience at the Scollay seems to be having a good enough time to split of everything. Vitaphone acts, newsreels and other features completes the bill.

NEW KEITH'S TO OPEN SOON

The latest addition to Boston's major theaters is rapidly nearing completion. The B. F. Keith Memorial Theater, built under the personal supervision of E. F. Albee, and intended as a lasting tribute to the memory of his friend and coworker, B. F. Keith, the founder of vaudeville, has been under construction for the past three years. Now its builder says, it will be thrown open to the public in a short time.

There are many reasons, apart from its beauty, why New Englanders should be especially interested in this new theater. In a sense it is vaudeville's gift to this city, for it was built not only as a tribute to the late Mr. Keith, but also as a gesture of friendship to the people of New England who made possible the growth of vaudeville as a great institution.

It was this same idea that was behind the building of the Keith Theater, on Washington st., many years ago. In its day it was generally conceded to be the finest theater of its kind in the world. The beauty of its architecture, and the excellence of its presentations upon its stage, set the standard for all vaudeville theaters.

Latest From France

American Citizens Never Will Shoulder Reparation Bonds Just to Please Scheming French Politicians

A French politician would lose his job if he failed to think up new ways to get something out of the United States.

The latest French scheme to get our money is the most ingenious since the war.

We are asked to pay the French to get out of the Rhineland, where seventy thousand Allied soldiers are maintained on German soil at Germany's expense.

France, it is intimated, will agree to get out if "compensated" by the promise of large lump sum payments of the German war indemnity—four thousand million dollars.

Germany has no such staggering amount of cash. She has, however, been forced to give to the Allied Reparations Commission four thousand million dollars of Reparations bonds, which are a mortgage on German railroads and industries.

It is proposed to sell these bonds to American investors and turn the cash over to the Allies—more than half of it to France.

Then the money may be used to pay off the total Allied debt to the United States, provided we agree to cut that debt still further.

Of course, no four billion dollar security flotation could be made at once in this country. They suggest selling us a thousand million dollars of the German bonds to start with.

It would be nice for France and the other Allies to get this amount of German cash in hand.

It would be nice for France and the Allies to extinguish the eleven and a half billion dollars we hold of their bonds, by paying us three or four billion in cash.

It would be nice for Germany to get the foreign army of occupation off her soil.

It would be a very bad thing for the United States for these reasons:

1—It would divert the savings of American citizens from productive to unproductive uses. We can employ that money at home to build up the United States.

2—It would make us the chief war creditor of Germany and buy us an opportunity to take an active part in keeping Germany under the yoke.

3—It would make the United States, not the Allies, the object of German resentment and hatred so long as the reparations bonds run.

We do not believe that patriotic American bankers want to earn commissions by floating such bonds in the United States. We believe that Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, expressed the sentiment of the banking fraternity and of the country when he said in Berlin this week that "any attempt to float a majority or even half of the reparations bonds in the United States to liquidate the reparations problem will fail."

The Government at Washington would do a service by officially discrediting this propaganda for shifting the German war tribute bonds to the shoulders of American citizens.

Television Hazards

Will This Invention Convert Us Into an Inert, Non-Creative People?

If a vote were taken to decide which of recent inventions has added most to human happiness probably the radio would win. Yet its benefits are not without some hazards. Consider, for a moment, the matter of music.

Most of the tones which the radio clears are musical tones. It is increasing rapidly the popularity of music.

But listening to music is a passive process. It is the music that we make far more than the music that we hear which creates cultural value. If the radio's facility in spreading music should cause a waning of the personal urge to express music through instrument or voice it would exact a high price for its admittedly fine service.

And now radio's first great extension, television, looms. Crude as are its early stages, they foretell the time when in each home it will be possible, at the turn of a dial, to hear and see distant speakers, singers, actors, perhaps as clearly and with as exact a reproduction of natural tones and colors as if the spectator were in their immediate presence.

It is even conceivable that some day planes carrying cameras will be able to send us through the air pictures of the scenes over which they soar as distinct as are the messages they now communicate. That would be literally to hold a mirror up to nature.

Would this convert us into an inert, non-creative people? Would it, by the very ease with which the products of the toil of others is brought to our fireside, tend to weaken personal initiative?

America could ill spare the pioneer spirit.

Many Reply to Questionnaire That They Began Saving Money When They Married

It isn't the crabbed old bachelor who saves most, and it isn't the married man with several children to support. The savers are the young lovers and newlyweds, and they keep on saving through life.

Isabella Henderson says so, and if Miss Henderson doesn't know, who does? As secretary of the Railroad Building and Loan Association, she sent questionnaires to 70,000 to learn when and why they began saving. Ninety per cent replied that they began with marriage. Six per cent became thrifty when they were betrothed. Only four per cent saved without the aid or incentive of a mate.

There is no moral to be attached to this revelation. The situation is so highly moral throughout that one can only murmur a benediction and wish that all the world were as felicitous as Miss Henderson's clientele. Girls and boys who save money get married. Girls and boys who get married save money. Marriage and money are equally desirable. Either brings the other about. If marriage is your ambition, all you need do is save money and you will attain it. If money is your goal, get married and you'll have it. Eureka!

AN IMPOSSIBLE THING THAT HAPPENED

By DR. FRANK CRANE

DEMOCRACY is controlled by public opinion, and there are certain things that make public opinion. All of these things were hostile, or cold to the prohibition amendment.

First there were the newspapers. Not any leading newspaper or important magazine that I know of urged this amendment. Most of them opposed it, some sneered at it. They do yet.

Then there were the labor unions. They were against it. Samuel Gompers worked hard opposing it.

There was the intelligentsia and all literature. No highbrow of importance favored it, no popular book championed it. As a rule they were against it.

The stage for the most part ridiculed it.

No political party of importance declared for it. They all side-stepped it as much as possible.

Few leading politicians advocated it.

Most popular songs derided it.

Yet the impossible happened.

The amendment was carried by the majority of national representatives and it was ratified by a sufficient number of state Legislatures, to pass it more quickly, with one exception, than any other amendment to the Constitution has been put through.

What is the answer?

The answer is that there are many thousands of political speakers and organizations who have been forgotten by those who think they know politics.

Thousands of preachers throughout the United States know no politics except to oppose liquor. Thousands of churches move politically in only one direction.. They know that their greatest enemy is liquor, and they could be depended upon to work against it.

Another thing, business was opposed to it. Most railroad companies, life insurance companies, factories and other forms of business knew that liquor impaired their efficiency and limited their profits.

Therefore, by a sort of subterranean movement or popular tidal wave the prohibition amendment went over when everybody said it was impossible.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SOMEONE'S always warning me to watch out.

Someone's always telling me, "for my own good," what a sap I am and how the rest of the population is going to skin me if it gets a chance.

And, of course, I DON'T watch out—

And, of course, I DO get skinned. But not as often as you might think. Not nearly so often. Which is why I'm writing these few remarks about suspicion.

I realize that suspicion is supposed to be part of a Smart Guy's equipment. But somehow I can't seem to accumulate any.

I just naturally trust my fellow man.

I even naturally trust most of my fellow women. Which is what you might call pushing a virtue to the limit.

This trusting attitude is partly due to the fact that I'm lazy—too lazy to keep wondering whether they're trying to gyp me.

But it is also due to the fact that I judge the other fellow by myself. And I know that, as a general thing, I can be trusted.

Now don't run away with the idea that I'm any little Georgia Washington. I am not. I can, on occasion, be one of our best amateur liars. And no one is more capable of cussedness than I, when riled.

If one of these cautious lads gives me the dog-eye of suspicion, do I remember that I am a Christian gentlewoman and tell him my banking balance? I do not. I yearn to right out and swipe his spare tire, poison his gold fish and put cracker crumbs between his clean sheets.

But, if you approach me with open heart and trusting hands, you can count on me to the finish.

That's the way I am, and it's my belief that's the way most of us are.

We're Bad Medicine if treated as such—

But we're square shooters if given the breaks.

Suspect the other fellow and he'll return it with interest—

Trust him and he'll do the same.

FOR THERE'S NO SOOTHING PRIDE WHICH RISES IN ANY NORMAL HUMAN IN RESPONSE TO THE CHALLENGE OF ANOTHER HUMAN'S TRUST IN HIM—

Not always, of course.

Trust some lads and they'll walk off with your back teeth and arch supports. But that kind of a yard would do it anyway, in spite of all your cautious technique.

Generally speaking, you'll get a square deal if you give one.

And even if you are skinned once in a while—

WELL, I'D RATHER TAKE THE CHANCES AND BE SKINNED BY ONE OUT OF A HUNDRED BECAUSE I TRUSTED TOO MUCH—

THAN SPOIL ALL MY LIFE BY SUSPECTING EVERY ONE OF THE OTHER NINETY-NINE

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—Diary of a modern Pepys: Back again in the city and to a dress rehearsal of a musical show and to a Park Avenue restaurant with my wife, where a careless waiter upset cream on a new dress and the day utterly spoiled for both of us.

Nor do I care for the attitude of a many restaurants when an accident of this sort happens. It being a custom to consider it no especial concern of theirs. The city in a turmoil of heat and all afternoon at my labor and washing the dog.

In the evening to Ben Riley's inn for dinner with Karl Kitchen on the pretty open terrace and helped thrice to the most savory frog legs I ever tasted and Billy Seaman there with, as usual, a beautiful lady. Home in the bright glamour of the cool moon and to bed.

A THEATRICAL dress rehearsal is a fountain of excitement. The fate of many players is in the balance, for afterward comes the first weeding out process. To performers a dress rehearsal is often of more consequence than a first night.

The chorus girl who stumbles, sings a sour note, or the small part performer who fumbles a line may find themselves "at liberty." While not always true, the producer usually knows after a dress rehearsal whether or not he has a show that will click.

A dress rehearsal audience is composed chiefly of the playwright, the librettists, the lyricists, the costumiers, scouts from theatrical agencies, relatives of the principals and a few friends of the producer. It may run all day or from dusk until daylight.

Proceedings are often stopped by a skyrocket outburst of hysterics on the part of players cracking under the strain. The director and producer pace the aisles in the snarling attitude of sofa-footed bears. Their voices become whispers and their nerves taut as fiddle strings.

THE expert can judge from a dress rehearsal the true value of a show. To the casual observer it looks a hopeless fizzle. Following a dress rehearsa a show goes to Atlantic City or Stamford, unless it opens "cold" on Broadway, for a week's tryout and there is whipped into shape and the absurdities ironed out so it comes back to New York for the premier a fairly smooth performance.

A DRESS rehearsal reveals odd patter of the theater. Such terms, for instance, as "flood the backdrop," "give her a baby spot," "close with a black out" and "drop the border."

THE exalted position of the star is shown, too. He or she is the only member of the cast permitted to go through the dress performance in ordinary makeup. If a song is to be sung, the star merely hums a few bars and lets it go at that. The director modulates his voice addressing the great person and prefixes it with a "Mister" or "Miss." Chorus men are addressed as "Hey, you!" and chorus ladies merely by last names.

THE gay irresponsibility of the chorus girl is a constant wonder to those inclined to consider life as Something with a Big Purpose. She often walks out of the theater in a pique knowing perfectly well she has a long overdue hotel bill and faces another dreary quest for work. That night she is likely to be found the life of the party in a supper club.

"YOU have ever permitted New York," writes a lady in Seattle, "to spoil your sense of values. You can see the worthwhile in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Reno. You have a good head on your shoulders." Thanks for the trade list. But there are many who claim there are better heads on umbrellas.

Hoofs and History

A Utilitarian Age Wrote the Doom of Longhorn Cattle

Within the memory of living men, herds of longhorn cattle covered the plains of the West in countless thousands. This month, the Federal Government managed by dint of patient search to assemble a herd of twenty cows and three bulls. The herd has been established in a national preserve, to be guarded like the bison of Yellowstone, that future generations may see the beast that fed America through its lusty youth.

A whole school of fiction grew up with the Texas longhorn as indispensable background to the picturesque figure of the cowboy. No statistician would be hardy enough to estimate the miles of film footage the longhorn inspired. Introduced from Spain in 1521, our breed throve amazingly. It was good enough once, but it ran mostly to horns, hoofs and speed—too little to beef. A utilitarian age wrote its doom.

Before it is too late, something ought to be done to preserve a flock of the equally historic Model T.

America—Second!

From the War Department comes the report that Great Britain sent more ships through the Panama Canal than any other nation last year. The British flag floated over 727 vessels, while the Stars and Stripes was represented by 532 ships. Even on that report, the United States is making a better showing than the facts warrant, because many of our vessels were counted several times as they passed on short voyages through the cuts.

The reason and the remedy rest with the Government and need not be explained and argued just now. Yet it comes hard to concede that America is second in anything—especially when it is our canal.
